THE PRESIDENT.

Colenel I. W. Avery Secures a "Soft Snap"—Frank Altriend Provided for The New Chief of the Railway Mail Service-Perry Bellmout's Unwelcome Work.

WASHINGTON, February 15 .- [Special.]-A foolish rumor was circulated in Washington today, and telegraphed to several points, that

Secretary Manning's resignation was caused by the rupture of the cordial relations which had formerly existed between himself and the president. It was alleged that the misunderstanding dated to the president's interference with the policy of the treasury as to one and two dollar silver certificates and that Secretary

Manning has been seriously offended at the president's direction that the law regarding these certificates should be strictly executed.

While Secretary Manning and every other high official of the treasury have been opposed to silver, and have tried to bring it into disfavor, there is absolutely no fruth in the report that their opinions or action in this matter was the occasion of the secretary's resignation. For several weeks it has been known that Secretary Manning intended to resign just as soon as the president would consent for him to leave the treasury. He has not yet accepted the presidency of the New York bank, which has been tendered to him.

That Assistant Secretary Fairchild will succeed Secretary Manning.

The appointment of Mr. T. T. Nash, former chief clerk of the postoffice department, to succeed Mr. John Jamison, as superintendent of the railway mail service has given great satisfaction. Mr. Nash is a sterling democrat who has been of great service to the party in Wisconsin. He served with distinction in the character and admitted ability guarantee that he will fill the responsible office to which he has been called in a most satisfactory manner.

THE NAVAL BILL

The Senate Discusses an Amendment by Mr.

Hale. Washington, February 15.-In the senate, Ir. Jones, of Nevada, from the committee on finance, reported back the house amendments to the trade dollar bill, with recommendation that they be concurred in.

The amendments were non-concurred in, and a conference asked.

Messrs. Jones, of Nevada, Morrill and Beck, were appointed conferees on the part of the sub-committee of the committee on privileges and elections (inquiring into the Washington county, Texas, troubles), to inquire whether there has been any attempt by the United States district attorney for the western district

The senate took up Mr. Cameron's bill to increase the naval establishment.

Mr. Hale offered an amendment that if the speed of any vessel shall exceed twenty knots an hour the contrator shall receive $50,000 for eyery additional quarter knot: and fit shall be less than twenty knots an hour, there shall be deducted from the contract $50,000 for every quarter knet below twenty knots.

Mr. Hale explained and defended the amendment. He offered it as a practical measure. It did not involve the abandonment of the twenty-knot speed; but it did not encour-age and stimulate contractors to enter on this great work, in contracts that would be their ruin, if they failed, to the extent of a quarter of knot 2

Mr. VanWyck characterized the amendment or the naval department to hedge, or contractors to hedge, against the government and against the people. He thought that the senate should show little hesitancy about this bill, and "go slow." He believed that the real object of these twin bills (as of two companion ordnance bills) was to deplete the treasury so that there should be no excuse for reducing oppressive tariff duties.

Mr. Hale said that he had no seuse of humil

Mr. Hale said that he had no sense of humiliation in having learned somthing over night. He acknowledged that his fear of danger that the rigid text of the bill might frighten of contractors was much stronger today than it was yesterday. Thinking it over, and talking it over, with an honest purpose of getting the swiftest ships, he had offered the amendment as a practical measure, and he thought is would commend itself to the good sense of the

PRIVILEGED QUESTIONS. WHY MANNING RESIGNED Does Notice to Change the Rules Present HE HAD NO DISAGREEMENT WITH

WASHINGTON, February 15 .- The speaker snnounced the appointment of Messrs. Peel, Skinner and Perkins as conferees on the Indian appropriation bill.

After the disposal of the business on the speaker's table, Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, called up the resolution discharging the committee of the whole from the further consideration of the senate bill granting a pension to Mary S. Logan, and making that bill the special order for today. Against this resolution a point of order was pending that itdid not present a privileged question and was not entitled to immediate consideration.

As bearing upon the question Mr. Hammond made long citations from the debate which occurred in the house in 1882, at the time of the adeption of the rule known as "Pound" rule. This was the only occasion since 1794 when the direct question was raised as to whether notice of a change of rules presented privileged matter when called up, and upon that occasion the weight of the argument had been so great against the affirmative of the proposition that Mr. Pound, of Wisconsin author of the proposed change of rules, had voluntarily abandoned bis proposition, and remitted his measure to be referred to the ommittee on rules.

Mr. Dibble, of South Carolina, contended that

Mr. Henderson's resolution involved a change of title and, therefore, presented a privileged question, after due notice having been given. It had been decided over and over again that a report from the committee on rules, making some measure a special order, was privileged. Mr. Willis inquired whother it would be in order to refer the pending proposition to the committee on rules with certain instructions. The speaker stated that it would not, and on operation of the speaker's decision, the Hen lerson resolution was sent to the con nules.

Mr. Hammond, of Georgia, submitted a con ference report on the anti-Mormon bill, and it was ordered printed and laid over until Thurs-

The house then went into committee of the whole on the diplomatic and consular appro-priation bill. There was nothing in the rules which made the reports of that committee which made the reports of the control of the privileged and their privileged character was not derived from the committee, but was inherent in the subject—the matter of reports. Therefore, a resolution making a special order, was privileged without having been reported was privileged without having been reported from the committee on rules.

The speaker then rendered his decision, in which he reviewed the question involved exhaustively. At the first session of the 48th congress, he said the present occupant of the chair had rendered a decision on a similar point and he had then decided (quoting the decision at length) that rules when at length) that notice to change the rules when called up did not present a privileged question, but was subject to all the rules and must be referred to the committee on rules.

The chair had reviewed not only that de cision but all other decisions accessible, and still adhered to the construction he had then placed upon the rules. The chair thought that placed upon the rules. The chair thought that no matter how the proposition came before the house in the first instance, it must, when again called up, go to the committee on rules. He therefore sustained the point of order. Upon the points of order raised by Mr. Burnes, of Missouri, practically all items which increase any existing salaries or provide for such contingent expenses of foreign missions.

such contingent expenses of foreign missions sient, postage telegrams, clerk hire, etc., were ricken out: also items providing for the erec-on or repair of legation buildings. Without completing the consideration of the fil, the committee rose.

Messis. Cobb, VanEaton and Payson were and forfeiture bill.

The house then adjourned.

MANNING'S RESIGNATION.

retary Manning, in regard to the latter's withdrawal from the cabinet, was made public this evening:

Theastry Department, Washington, D. C., February H., 1887.—My Dear Sir: In view of the near adjournment of congress, and in order that time may suffice for the selection and confirmation of my successor. I desire again to place my resignation of the office of secretary of the treasury in your hands, and trust you may now deem its acceptance no detriment to the public service. When you requested me last June to delay insisting upon the acceptance of my resignation, as again in our conferences last October, you homored we with such terms of personal consideration, and expressed so grave a decision in respect to the requirements of the public service, that it was impossible to question my duty as to forget your kindness. I have not sparred myself in the endeavor to comply with your yish and to contribute to the support of the policies which have illustrated your administration. The approaching end of the forty-ininth congress marks a period in your own term of office and in the divisions of our political calendar. If a change must occur in the heads of departments and at your council board, it is clear that your personal convenience and public interests are best subserved should it occur now. Moreover, the financial situation is to be seriously different from that which opened before us when the present congress entered upon its life and upon the opportunities created by the transfer of the people's trust to new hands. In this most critical condition, the circumspect execution of a wise fiscal policy or of administrative reforms in the collection and disbursement of our colosal, revenues, is not alone demanded, though labors such as these have exacted and exhibited the abilities of our foremost statesmen since the constitution of the government. But there is also an exhausting round of daily administrative tasks which, however, subordinate and clerical, an efficient serveray of the account of the present strength.

and they challenge the appreciation and gratitude of all your countrymen.

Since I must at last reling it my it my hope of your continuance at my side as counselior and collaborer, and since I cannot question the reasons upon which your request to be relieved is based, it only remains for me to accept the resignation you have tendered, and to express my profound thanks for all that you have done for me in sharing manfully my lators and the perplexities of the past two years. I feel that I may still ask of you that the first day of April next be fixed as the date on which your resignation shall take effect, and that you will so regulate what remains to you of official duty in the meantime, as to secure that measure of freedom from the vexations labor which you have so justly earned, with the earnest loope, that in any new path of life you may hereafter follow, there may be allowed to you more of comfort and of ease than the conscientious discharge of duty here permits. I am very sincerely, your friend.

THE ALLEGED OUTRAGES. FAILED FOR A MILLION.

A HEAVY BUSINESS DISASTER IN GALVESTON

Black, Opposite mer & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods
Turn Over Their Stock and Building to Creditors—Too Much Credit to Country Customers the Cause of Their Failure.

GALVESTON, February 15 .- The wholesal dry goods and boot and shoe house of Black, Oppenheimer & Co. filed for record this morning a transfer of their entire stock and also their ousiness premises in payment of obligations due to local creditors. These local debts aggregate $225,787, chiefly owing to banks and local capitalists, who indorsed for the firm. The stock was invoiced and turned over at 70 cents on the dollar, aggregating $204 820. The building and fixtures were transferred at a net valua tion of $20,000 less the amount of the mortgage The total liabilities of the firm will reach $750,000, all of which, except that which is secured as above, is owing in New York city. Over $50,000 is due H. B. Claffin & Co.

The members of the firm are Louis Black Leopold Oppenheimer, Elsie Michael, Jacob Lowentheil and Sylvain Lyon, Mr. Lyon is now in New York, where he has been since th 1st of January. It is stated that nearly all the western creditors are unsecured; also that many book accounts and notes due the firm at the time of the transfer are of doubtful value. The firm has been doing a poor business for the past three years.

But very little can be ascertained here re garding eastern creditors, except the fact that debts aggregating nearly half a million are unsecured. The failure is the largest and most serious that has occured here in fourteen years. Business men attribute the failure to a heavy line of country credits. It is stated that nearly $400,000 is owing to the firm from country creditors. The best of these claims have been discounted in the east. It is feared a number of small failures throughou the state may follow. About four years are the firm of Ross & Russell transferred racti-cally all their assets to preferred local creditors. The transfer was contested by eastern creditors, who carried the question to the su-preme court of Texas, which held that the transfer was valid. It is under this authority that the attorneys have advised the present sale of the stobk and building. Until recently the firm owned nearly $200, 000 in trust loans in New York, but sin first of January these trust debts in the east bave been liquidated to the extent of the pay-ment of $175,000, the money for the same having been borrowed in Galveston. The failure was precipitated by Mr. Oppenheimer, the New York resident partner, who, it is said, broked down under a severe strain, and on last broke down under a severe strain, and on last Saturday night telegraphed to his partners that their paper would go to protest today.

THE WAR SHIPS WE NEED. Description of the Vessels the Naval Committee Adopt.

WASHINGTON, February 15 .- In reporting through Mr. Thomas, the substitute bill to increase the naval establishment, the house committee on naval affairs says that, recognizing the necessity for a speedy increase in the num-ber of vessels of war- capable of being used the necessity for a speedy increase in the number of vessels of war- capable of being used effectively and economically, both in peace andwar, it has adopted those types of vessels represented by the swift, partially protected and heavily armed cruiser Newark and gun-boat No 1. The report says:

The Newark is the latest and best type of modern man-of-var, of 4,000 tons displacement class, and if supplied with triple expansion engines and the best modern beiters and machinery, will undoubtedly be the best and swiftest vessel of hele class in the world. Two of this type, to cost not exceeding $1,300,600 each, are recommended. The vessels of 1,700 tons displacement class-known as gunboat No. 1—is the heaviest armed gunboat in the world, and will probably have a speed of nearly nineteen knots per hour and ability to overtake, or escape, from ninety-nine per cent of all vessels of the navies or merchant marine of the world. Four of this type, to cost not exceeding $550,000 each, are recommended. As torpedo boats can be speedily built when needed, the committee have thought best to recommend the building of only one at this time to serve as a pattern in case a large number should be needed hereafter. The pneumatic dynamite gun torpedo boat now being constructed by the government promises to be the most terrible and effective engine or modern warfare and will probably supersede all other types of the larger torpedo boat, in case the expectations of the inventor and the navy department are realized, when the vessel is completed and tested. At least a year must elapse after the close of this congress before a bill can be properly considered and passed, authorizing the construction of war vessels. Therefore the committee urges upon the house with the greatest possible earnestness, the necessity of providing at once for the building of the vessels suggested in the substitute. The bill reported has already been described and is a substitute for Mr. Lawler's resolution for the immediate appropriation of $50,000,000 to be ex

the construction and armament of new vessel Thomas's bill, to increase the naval establishment; Herbert's bill, to further increase the naval establishment; Ballentine's bill, to pronaval establishment; Ballentine's bill, to provide for the construction of a steam cruising vessel of war, a Lundborg ship of twenty knots speed; Merriman's bill for the purchase of Ericsson's "Destroyer," and ten enlarged steel vessels of the same type; Harmer's bill for the construction of two composite training ships; King's bill for the construction of steel clad rams without guns; and Lore's bill for the construction of a Lundborg vessel of twenty knots' energy. vessel of twenty knots' speed. These bills provide for an aggregate appropriation of $69,092,000, while the substitute bill contemplates an ultimate expenditure of $4,920,000, and makes an immediate appropriation of $2,450,

Articles in the same paper on October 11th and December 18th, announced that France was ready to fight, and expressed the wish that the decisive moment would not be long delayed, and proclaimed the him intention of the French to retake Alsace-Loraine, adding that war would be inevitable at the first opportunity.

The Kruez Zeitung publishes a manifesto signed by Count Tuerstenborg-Hannheim and thirty-six members of the Rhenish Catholic nobility, declaring that the center party, instead of pursuing a great national policy, has adopted a policy of frivolous bickering, now ording in an open alliance with depondent ending in an open alliance with democratic progressist principles, and that the whole course of action of the party is thus opposed to the urgent admonitions of the pope. The signers, therefore, call upon the Rhenish electors firm ly and loyally to stand by the emperor and co-operate in his support with the Catholic conservative party.

Washington, February 15.—The senate commerce committee has finished consideration of the river and harbor bill, and it will be reported tomorrow. The detailed bill is not accessible tonight. Its total, however, is now about $10,300,000. Some of the leading items, which have been increased by the senate committee, are as follows: Norfolk harbor $100,000, Appendix of the property o Appomatox river $16,000, Cape Fear river $140,000, Hennepin canal $50,000.

C. P. Witness had intended to delay till following Saturday transfer of the box to authorities at Brenham, but this intelligence inspired him to start at once. Lott's precinct is heavily republican.

On cross-examination, witness said there were negro candidates on both tickets. One

In answer to Mr. Spooner, witness said Washington county had usually gone republican since the war, though it had at times gone democratic. There was a goodly colored majority in the county, though witness could not say how large. The Gorman held the belance say how large. The Germans held the balance of power. ACTIVITY ON THE PIERS. Work Going On as Smoothly as Before the Strike.

NEW YORK, February 15 .- The business of steamship and railroad companies on the piers along the river front has assumed its normal condition, and freight is being handled as systematically as before the big strike. Many old hands have got back to work, and the Italians who took the places of strikers are now accustomed to the work, and the agents say they are as good as their old hands except they do not understand Euglish. The men now acknowledge they were badly beaten, and some of them are severe in their denunciation of the action of their leaders. Now that the strike has been formally declared off, many of the longshoremen who have been unable to get their old places back are drinking heavily, and several instances of assaults upon non-union men, going to or re-turning from work, by these drunken strikers are reported. The Italians who took the places ofthe strik-erf on the Morgan Line pier were all discharged today and colored men put in their places. The foreman at the Morgan pier has places. The foreman at the Morgan pier has received instructions from his company to em-ploy none of the late strikers, save at the rate of twenty-five cents per hour for day work and thirty-five cents per hour for night work. The strikers demur at these rates and have not yet resumed work. When the United States weighers and laborers, who were among states weighers and laborers, who were among the sympathetic strikers, wished to return to work in Brooklyn, they found platform scales substituted for beam scales and other changes, which required fewer men, so they struck again on their own grievance. From kindred causes, there is a good deal of local irritation in nearly every trade where labor has been interrupted.

The Eric railroad freight handlers in Jersey City today made another effort to get back in their old places, but were told that the company could give them no employment. Liquor and idleness are doing considerable mischief on the New Jersey side of the river, as well as in New York and Brooklyn.

Boston Street Cars Moving.

Boston, February 15.—Everything remains quiet in the horse railroad strikes. Camebridge cars on the main line have been running every four minutes. Company officials state that they have plenty of men, but admit that it will take time to train them and this they say will be done at any cost rather than take back the strikers. Philadelphia, February 15.—The United States mint here today secured a counterfeit two dollar and a half gold piece of 1852, for which it has been in quest for years, for the purpose of completing its cabinet. At the mint, however, the assayer declared it a counterfeit—one of the most dangerous begus gold coins ever made. "It contains only twenty seven cents' worth of gold." he said. "Yet its weight is that of a real article to a hair. Its size is exactly the same, save that the genuine coin is slightly thinner at the middle than the counterfeit, and it has the true ring of pure metal. We have been looktrue ring of pure metal. We have been looking for an example of this counterfeit for ten or fifteen years to place in our cabinat here. I readily recognized it by the head upon it. CHAMBERLAIN'S SCHEME FOR IRE LAND'S GOVERNMENT

He Proposes Separate Parliaments for the Prote-tant and Catholic Sections of Ireland-The Proposal Opposed by Mr. Moriey and Other Irish Statesmen-Other News.

LONDON, February 15 .- Messrs. Chamberlain and Tevelyan today resumed their conference on Irish affairs with Baron Herschell, Harcourt and Morley. Chamberlain presented a draft of the scheme for the government of Ireland. which is a modification of his former proposals for the establishment for provincial councils. He would now establish an Ulster parliament at Belfast, and another parliament at Dublin, both to be subordinate to the imperial parliament, the Irish bodies holding executive authority within their own limits, but the crown retaining the appointment of judges and the control of customs and excise matters. The conference lasted several hours.

Mr. Morley declared his emphatic opposition to Chamberlain's proposals. He said it would be impossible to obtain the assent of Parnel-lites or of the bulk of the Gladstone liberals to the schome, which had already been rejected

GERMAN POLITICS. Professor Virchow Speaks to a Meeting in

BERLIN, February 15 .- Professor Virchow, in Berlin, February 15.—Professor Virchow, in the course of a powerful speech to the electors of the second Berlin circle, denounced the vatican's interference as the coercion of Catholic electors which all Germany should resent. Toward the close-of his speech he said:

If militarism be supreme law, the sovereign to which we must sacrifice commerce, industry, everything, Germany has a bad future in store. War will not be averted by one state making always greater preparations than a neighboring state. On the contrary, these preparations must inevitably result in a collision. Our position, in the event of an external attack, is the strongest defensive position, and if a foreign state means to attack us, it will certainly not be hindered by a difference of 41,000 men.

The final passage was received with enthusiastic cheers.

LONDON, February 16.—Paris newspapers report many disquieting incidents on the German frontier. La Justice learns from Neufschateau that not a single soldier is allowed a leave of absence for even half an hour, on any pretense, the commander having learned that Germany is seeking a pretext for a petty quarrel. The Journal in Alsace re-ports that a Leipsic court issued a warrant for the search of the house of Herr Schmutz, of Strasbourg, secretary of Herr Kable's election committee, who was suspected of being connected with the Deroulde league, and that police ransacked the house but found nothing of an incriminating nature. The houses of numerous bankers and others through the provinces are reported to have been searched for a similar reason.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says that Germany has arrived at an agreement with Belgium to prevent France invading Ger-many through Belgium.

DILLON ON TRIAL. A Jury Obtained .- A Disagreement Predicted.

DUBLIN, February 15.—In the commission court today, Messrs. Dillon, Sheehy, Crilly and O'Brien pleaded not guilty to the charge of conspiracy to induce tenants to refuse paying their rents. The crown then proceeded to swear in a jury for trial of defendants. Several Catholic jurors, including one named O'Brien, were ordered to stand aside and counsel for the defendants protested, and for a while there defendants protested, and for a while there was much commotion. Mr. O'Brien, one of the defendants, declared he would rather be sent to jail at once than submit to a trial before a jury composed so unfairly, that because a man's name was O'Brien he was excluded from it.

Mr. Crilly denounced the crown's conduct as ruffianly. Justice Murphy refused to inter-fere with the exercise of the crown's privilege of challenging the jury. After a long wrangle a jury was finally sworn. Its character per tends a disagreement.

THE SENATORIAL CONTESTS.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

SHOT THROUGH THE HEART. A Gentleman When Sober, A Desperado When Drunk.

ADAIRVILLE, Ky., February 15.—[Special.]
This place was thrown into a fever of excitement by the killing of Fayette Thoughber by Bob Gorham. Thoughber, who was a very nice, quiet gentleman when sober, was a perfect desperado when under the influence of liquor. He was in town on Saturday and was drinking, and it is said that he threatened to kill Gorham before he left town. The two met in the square at 3 p. m., Gorham with a shotgun and Thoughber with a pistol. Who fired first is not positively known, but Gorham fred one shot and Thoughber five, the shots of Gorham taking effect in the hand and breast of Thoughber, one shot passing through the heart. He staggered and fell against the bank of Adairville and died in four minutes. He was taken to the office of the Blanchage house and dressed, and at 5 o'clock Blanchage house and dressed, and at 5 o'clock was carried to his home in Robertson county, Tennessee. No inquest was held.

FEEDING THE HUNGRY.

Distributing Breadstuffs to the Drought Sufferers of Texas.

FORT WORTH, Texas, February 15.—The drought commissioners appointed by Governor Ross to distribute the $100,000 appropriated by the legislature for the relief of people in the drought-stricken district of Texas, arrived in this city on the midnight train Saturday night and spent Sunday here, leaving for Eastland, the county seat, yesterday. The commissioners began their labors at Lanpasas and have visited and inspected the condition of affairs in six counties up to the present time. They say they find the people in need of assistance wherever they have been, but the principal things they need are seed and feed for their steck, and these the commission has not the power or authority to furnish them, the legislature having restricted them to simply furnishing flour and meal to those in actual need of bread and who will make the required oath to that effect.

SMASHING THE SLEEPERS. Two Railroad Accidents, But No Loss of Life.

Chicago, February 15.—At Watertown, Ill., on the Chicago and Iowa railway, this morning, the Dubuque train, with two sleepers, had just passed the station when the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train, which follows it, crushed into it, completely wrecking the sleeping cars. The engineer of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train broke his legs in jumping from the cab, but by almost a miracle none of the passengers on the train were injured. Each engineer claims that the other was two minutes out of his time.

Berg & Flyrn Assigns The Celebration of a Happy Narriege Anniversary - Personal Mention and Other Items of News.

MACON, Ga., February 15,-[Special.]-The superior court convened today. Only two cases called. The first was a bill brought by James Langston against his mother, Mrs. W. Langston, to cancel a deed to certain property lying near Macon. It seems that during the war a Mr. Baily hired James Langston, who was then a young man of only 16 years, as a substitute for service in the war, the consideration of which was to be $1,000-$100 cash and a note for the remainder. This note and the ferred to. When leaving for the war instructed his mother to have the deed made in his name, at the same time saying to her if he never returned the property was to go to her and the children. Acting on her understanding of the matter, a deed was made to Mrs. Langston and children, and now James Langston wishes to have the deed brought into court and cancelled, and brought suit to that effect.

The case was an interesting one and con-umed the bigger part of the day.

Mary Bates from her husband, Stoner J. Bates, who, as she claimed, deserted her and child in May, 1884, and has not lived with her since Court then adjourned to 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.
This week will end court for the term,

Judge Simmons will adjourn court on Friday to the spring term next. During the term of court, which has been since October last, a large amount of business has been disposed of, both criminal and civil, and Judge Simmons has made a wonderful record, and needs the short rest he will get between the courts, as he goes to Crawford court early in March. That is one thing among the many that the people of Macon can boast of, and that is, she has a judge of her superior court second to none in the state.

He is a member of the board ap-pointed to revise the constitution of the Columbia Theological seminary. Mr. Summey, although a very young man, occupies a high position in the church. He is a fine scholar and a persuasive preacher. He will remain in the city several days.

THE Rev. J. L. Girardeau, of Columbia, S C., reached the city yesterday, morning and i staying at the Markham house. He comes to Atstaying at the Markham house. He comes to Atlanta as a member of the board which is to revise the constitution of the Columbia Theological seminary. He is one of the two representatives of the South Carolina Presbyterian synad. Dr. Girardeau is one of the most distinguished exponents of Calvin living. A profound theologian, a powerful controvertist and an eloquent pulpit crator, he is second to no man in the church. He will remain in the city a few days, and it is to be hoped that he may be induced to remain over similary and deliver his celebrated sermon on the jidgment day.

DR. A. J. RICKOFF, of Yonkers, N. Y., and Mr. M. G. Watterson, of Cleveland, O., spent the day in Atlanta yesterday. Dr. Rickoff is one of the leading educators of the United States, having been superintendent of the public schools of Cincinnati and Cleveland, O., and of Yonkers, N. Y. He has also been president of the National Teachers' asso-ciation. For several years he has been employed in compiling and editing several educational works. in compiling and editing several concational works. He is one of the authors of Appleton's readers, that are used in our city schools, and in the schools of a large number of southern cities. Recently he has issued a series of arithmetics, published by D. Appleton & Co., of New York, that have been received with high favor by our best teachers.

Mr. M. G. Watterson is a merchant and manufacturer, and has come south in search of the remains of a brother who was killed in the battles about Atlanta during the war.

of a brother who was killed in the battles about At-lanta during the war.

Eoth these gentlemen expressed much surprise at the solidity of the city, and were astohished to know that a city with a population of only sixty thou-sand could boast of such splendidly paved streets and such costly public buildings. Dr. Rickoff and Mr. Watterson left this morning for Nashville,

JOHNNIE BENT'S CAREER AS A CIR CUS MAN.

Visiting Foreign Parts - A Row With the Governo Guadolope—R-ported Lost at Sea-Hears of His Mother's Death—Other Adventurers— The Same Old story of Dissipation,

ON THE TRAIN, February 14 .- [Special Cor respondence.]—Tonight, as we came bowling along at a gallop, we noticed the gleam of many lights at the quaint old town of Oglethorpe. Putting my nose against the window, I could see far down the track a spread of canvas, denoting the presence of a circus. As the train slowed up quite a little party sprang aboard, and in an justant I was confronted with the jovial faces of Hons E. G. Simmons and E.F. Hinton, law yers of Americus

"Hello! What's up?" I asked. "Just arrested DeHaven's circus again. Had them arrest d in Americus, but they skipped out and we came up and tied them up again at Oglethorpe." After some more talk I was accosted by a boyish looking fellow, who introduced himself as Johnnie Bent, formerly of Atlanta. He told me off his connection with the case. It seems that J. J. Robeck, known in the circus parlance as "Cookie," brought suit against be Haven's circus for money due him. 18-Haven himself leased the show to a man nemed Nail and left for Chicago. Robeck had the circus attached, and he was in turn arrested for carrying concessed weapons. Johnnie Bent went on Cookie's hond, as an old friend, and so become connected with the pit. became connected with the suit.

After briefly stating these facts, he proceeded to give me a brief sketch of his career as a circus man.

Some years ago he joined DeHaven's circus, and with the show visited the West Indies and outh America.

The circus made a successful tour of equatorial lands, and started on the return voyage for St. Thomas, one of the West India islands. They intended coming by a nearer route, but there happened to be a row in Nicarangua and the vessel had to bear off, and while the battling natives were given a wide berth, the circus men were confined to their narrow one for a longer time than were in the circus and the circus men were confined to their narrow one for a longer time than as either pleasant or profitable. Before the voyage was over the vessel suffered shipwreck near Cat island, and the papers teemed with black letter headlines, stating that the circus had been lost, and with it Johnnie Bent, a native of Atlanta. Johnnie Bent was not lost, however, and it was his good or ill fortune that brought him some notoriety by throwing him in contact with the high dignitaries of the Isle de Guada-loupe.

While the circus was on this favored island the gevin r and other high and mighty officials got into a dispute with with the circus men, and the outcome of the with the circus men, and the outcome of the large officials cont. black eyes affair was that various officials got black eyes and the governor left the scene of conflict with a broken head. Johnnie was accused of striking the Lord's anointed, and had to suffer alone the odium of the deed. Johnnie speaks very bitterly of the way the circus folks failed to stick up to him, when they found they could appeas the insulted honor of the Guadaloupans by allowing him to be punished for it.

When the circus arrived at St. Thomas Johnnie heard of the death of his mother, some two months after the sad occurrence, and he suffered great anguish of soul at the sad intel-ligence. But he was far from home, and it was sometime before he stepped ashore once more upon the land of his nativity at City of Branswick, by the sea.

Johnnie was obliged to continue with the circus so as to fill his engagement and get his salary.

Arriving in Atlanta he had only two hours in which to condole with his father, whose heart was sore with grieving over the death of his wife. Johnnie says he went on to Chicago, hoping Johnnie says he went on to Chicago, hoping to get his money, but he failed to secure it, and had to apply to his father, who owns a good deal of valuable property, real and personal, in Atlanta, for the means to get back home. He received fifty dollars, but was induced to remain with the circus for awhile longer, by the hope of getting his money. He says that he turned the fifty dollars over to one of the circus men, telling him to keep it, so that in case Johnnie had to jump the show he would have enough to get home on. When he got to a place called Wrightsville, out west, he was told to return to a certain point, and when he joined the circus be feund that he had been discharged. He only succeeded in getting twenty of the fifty only succeeded in getting twenty of the fifty dollars back, and with that he managed to get back to Georgia, where he has remained since "This is one reason," said Johnnie, "why I was so ready to assist Cokie in his trouble. They owe me money, which I cannot get, and they owe Cookie money, too. Just then we slowed up at Americus, and the party left the train.

Jgot to thinking on Johnnie's story, and as I had just read all I could get out of THE CONSTITUTION I decided to write up his adventures give you an account of my experience with your valuable preparation, Wine of Life. For six months I have suffered with constipation, pains in head, back and lower extremities, and profuse leucorrhea. My monthly sickness ceased to make its appearance, and I felt like a complete so that Georgia boys who have a haukering after circuses may gain a little inkling of some of the ways of circus people. I have only his simple story, and I give it to you for what it is worth. worth worth.

Here is Albany, and we leave the smooth, easy-going Southwestern for that rooty, rumbling section of the Sayannah, Florida and Western, between Albany and Thomasville. But I have got to lie over, or sit over, bere at Allany for two mortal hours, and it is swfuldark, and an east wind blowing that awful dark, and an east wind blowing that does nobody any good. So, good night, and don't you forget Johnnie Bent's strange and romantic adventures. M. M. F.

Bumping in West Point.

From the West Point, Ga., Press.

The practice of bumping small boys for trumped up offenses is becoming quite a nuisance in West Point, and if not stopped will result in the death of some of our boys before another month has passed. Last Tuesday evening a fight occurred between two boys, caused by the bumping practice upon a small, helpless boy, which came near being a serious matter. The timely interference of citizens, however, averted serious consequences, and the subsequent action of Professor McKemie pointed to the fact that a stop would be put to such practices. So far no serious results have been experienced, and bumping will no doubt be suspended in future.

"Daddy's" Daughter.

From the Milledgeville, Ga., Chronicle. An old darky came into town this week, and while walking up the street met a young col-ored woman, who accosted him as "daddy." The old darky was somewhat surprised, but after a little explanation he was convinced that she was really his child. The old man says he is the father of thirty-six children and does not know half of them personally. He presented his daughter with a large wax doll and she went off as happy as a lark.

*Consumption Can Be Cured." Dr. J. S. COMBS, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine,"

FUTURE PLANS AND PURPOSES

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE PURCHASED THE Etowah property, and a charter has been applied or under the name of the

Etowah Iron and Manganese Company,

This property, and all rights and franchises, it is proposed to sell to that company upon terms and valuation set forth in the contract of subscription, which may be inspected by any one wishing to subscribe, at the principal office in Atlanta, Ga., or at the office of any of our agents. The proceeds of the sale of stock will be placed in the hands of three Trustees, for the improvement and development of the property, under the direction of the Board of Directors. It is proposed that these improvements shall be of such a character as will, within a reasonable time, return handsome dividends to the stock-holders.

Iron & Manganese Practically Inexhaustible

The supply of Iron and Manganese ores being practically inexhaustible, furnaces for Manganese Metal and Fig Iron, and Charcosl and Chemical works, may be eastly erected and worked to great profit. These and other industries which will suggest themselves to the stockholders from time to time, will make this property a hive of industry and profit, and in the course of a few years it will be one of the most valuable properties owned by any firm or corporation.

SHARES FOR SALE,

A limited number of shares of the Etowah Iron and Manganese company are now for sale at 33½ per cent, one-third payable when the subscription is made, one-third on the 15th of April, and the balance on the 1st of October next.

AUCTION SALES—I WILL SELL, WEDNESDAY A next, 16th instant, on the premises, 39 acres of land on Flat Shoals, or East McDonough road, 134 miles from city limits, divided into tracts of from 2 to 4 acres, as per plat. There is a 2 room house on one of the lots, and a 4 room house on another. There is also a good orchard of apples and peaches, also 34 acre in strawberries. This property must be sold for what it will bring. Immediately after the sale of the above will self one of the prettiest places, near Atlanta, and adjoining the above, on an elevation overlooking the city; all the principal buildings can be seen as plainly as from almost any point in the city; containing 28 acres, 16 in high state of cultivation, 7 in woods well timbered. On this place is new 4 room house, painted and plastered, 2 room servant's house, cow and horse stalls. Also one of the best young orchards and vineyards in the community. And immediately after the sale of this place, will sell 25 acres just across the street, which is one of the loveliest places for a nice residence anywhere near the city. On this place is a 2 room house, barn and stable, young orchard; also vineyard in bearing, 15 acres in cultivation, 10 acres in original forest. All of this is magnificent property, about 30 minutes drive from the city, on one of the best thoroughfares leading into the city. Good schools and churches very convenient. In fact it is a suburban villa with two or three stores and shops. Titles to all of above land perfect. Terms of sale, one-half cash, balance 6 months with interest at 8 per cent. A lunch of barbecued meats will be served at 1 o'clock, enough for all. Come to the barbecue. Salé begins at 10 o'clock. Parties will be met at the end Decatur street car line at 9 o'clock. I have farms in great variety and variously located to sell cheap, or exchange for city property. Also houses and lots and vacant lots on all the principal streets. Call Monday if you want bargains.

TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF FULTON COUNTY, Georgia.—The Orphans' Home of the North Georgia Conference respectfully represents that it was created a corporate body in this court on the 22d day of November, 1871, and it now asks that its charter may be amended as follows:

1. That the number of Trustees shall be reduced to three. That the first Board under the amended Charter shall consist of William A. Gregg, R. A. Hemphill and George Muse. Should a vacancy occur in the Board, by death, resignation or otherwise, it shall be filled by the surviving Trustees. If they should fail to fill the vacancy within three months after it happens, then it shall be filled in the manner prescribed in section 221 of the Code of Georgia. The Trustees shall be members of the Methodist Episcopal church South, and shall hold the property coming into their hands as Trustees, in trust for said church.

2. The General Agent for the Home appointed by the Trustees shall have and exercise the voting power of one Trustee in all matters of administration connected with the bussness of the corporation.

STRAWBERRIES are the proper caper now at the ladies' lunches in New York. The berries cost at this season fifty cents apiece. S. S. Cox is manifesting a diabolical temper of late, to the great joy of his friends, as they consider it a certain indication of THERE is a marked decrease in the values of coal lands in Pennsylvania. Recent sales have brought only one-half the price which prevailed in 1867. THE wholesale crusade against the gamblers in the south and southwest is au indication that we are entering upon an era of speculative enterprises. Some amiable democratic editors in Tennessee are trying to discipline Colonel Colyar of the Union. The colonel is giving them about all the fun they want. It is said that Gath is engaged on another povel. This is a good idea. We believe the time has come when every novelist should be engaged on another novel.

In response to a correspondent we would say that the genuine knee-breeches can be procured only by writing to Hon. Eugene Field, care Melville Stone, N. G., Chicago,

No suggestion ever made in these columns has met with a readier response than the proposition to organize and arrange for an industrial and agricultural exposition covering the Piedmont region. The exposition is already an assured fact.

VIRGINIA congressmen are agreed that the failure to repeal or modify the tobacco tax will injure the democratic party in that state. But what do the congressional agents of the whisky ring care about the success of the democratic party?

THE New York Herald is hereby informed r Watterson has already an nuonced that he will support Mr. Cleveland if he is renominated. He will support Mr. Cleveland, but, at the same time, he will try to get everybody else to oppose him.

OUR Washington correspondent says that Mr. Bayard will decline to furnish congress a copy of the correspondence between General Henry R. Jackson and the state department. It is understood that General Jackson made some Georgia remarks in his

THE candidacy of ex-President W. G. Raoul for a place on the new United States railroad commission is meeting with much approval am the newspapers of the country. His practical acquaintance with railroad work would fit him admirably for the place, if he should get it.

THE faith-cure nonsense has reached its height at Minneapolis, where it is claimed that a party of ladies, by their prayers and the laying on of hands, succeeded in restoring Miss Cora Stickney to life. Unfortunately the young lady again became a corpse as soon as her mother touched her arm.

THE plan of a few one-horse democratic congressmen to "discipline" Mr. Randall will not work. Mr. Randall is the real leader of the party in congress, and he is one of the leaders of the party in the nation. Everybody understands this except a few men who are in the service of the whisky

AT Leavenworth, Kansas, the other day, several members of the "Law and Order League" were assaulted by roughs. Such things must be expected. Law and order leagues are unlawful organizations. They provoke breaches of the peace. They smack too much of the frontier to be tolerated in a civilized community.

THE Athens Banner-Watchman says: Dirt will be broken for the Technological sch ilding next week. Plans for three buildings have been prepared, and the grading will be proceeded with at once." THE New York Herald asks if Brother Watterson is a democrat. The question is not broad enough in its suggestions. Brother Watterson is not only a democrat, but he is the executive officer of the democratic party. Isn't he engaged every day in making examples of democratic "traitors?" Doesn't he turn Mr. Randall out of the party every fortnight.

SENATOR HAWLEY, of Connecticut, in referring to President Cleveland's veto of the pauper pension bill, said: I have not read it through, but have caught the points of objection. The bill was not wholly satisfactory to congressmen. But it was looked upon actory to congressmen. But it was looked upon as a final settlement of the pension question. Its provisions were such that no old soldier would ever go to the almshouse. With that determined, the pension question would have been concluded. The bill appropriated considerable money, but it settled the pension business. It will not pass over the veto.

THE Darien Gazette calls out for protection for the pine forests of the state. These lands, says the Gazette, are enhancing rapidly in value, and investors who are able to hold can expect to realize in a few years a handsome profit. They can see plainly that the present policy of the turpentine and mill owners is working a rapid and complete destruction of the forests owned by them, and secures a certainty of profit to those who can afford to hold their lands unharvested. The turpentining and cutting for mill purposes of the half-grown and small trees destroys utterly the future crop, which could be harvested continually for a long term of years if a more judicious and economical treatment was adopted.

OWING to abuses connected with Jewish marriages in New York city, at the request of a number of reputable rabbis the legislature has been asked to interfere. The consequence is a bill which only recognizes marriages performed by the rabbis of chartered temples. The rabbis who would thus be cut off are indignant. At a recent meeting the matter was debated. One of the speakers said that the present bill would prevent so-called rabbis, one of whom owns a bar room at No. 34 Hester street, from performing the marriage ceremony. Dr. Browne opposed the bill tooth and nail, and said he would see it did not pass. He claimed that the bill was meant to enrich five rabbis, and deprive the fifty-five others of means of subsistence. The debate between the two rabbis grew excited at times and Dr. Weiss at last left the meeting in disgust. Mr. Fuchs drew attention to the Hebrew tradition that if a Hebrew went up to a girl, handed her a piece of money and she accepted it, this would be regarded as a marriage.

The Blaine Party on a Spree. Last Saturday night a number of republicans, who try to be patriotic without exactly knowing how, had a drinking bout in honor of the memory of Abraham Lincoln. Just how a banquet could be supposed to honor the memory of such a man, who was always beyond the comprehension of the party he represented, we do not understand. In spite of our lack of gumption on this point, however, the aforesaid banquet took place. There was a good deal of gormandizing and rather more than the usual amount of guzzling, to say nothing of the speechmaking. The New York Herald, which usually keeps its eyes and ears open, says that the gormandizing and guzzling were in behalf of Brother Blaine and were not intended as a tribute to Lincoln. This information is gratitying indeed. Better by far that the gormandizing and guzzling should go on in behalf of a typical modern republican like Blaine than that it should go on in behalf of the memory of a typical American like Lincoln. The loaves

The New York Southern Society. The first annual dinner of the New York Southern society will be given at the Hotel Brunswick on the 22d, the birthday of the father of his country. This announcement has already been made by telegraph. The dinner will be in the nature of a reunion of the southern element in New York, which is composed of some of the most prominent antl active business men of that city. This element is larger than many would suppose; so large, indeed, that the largest dining hall of the Hotel Brunswick cannot accommodate them all.

In the announcement of the society it is stated that the recent speech of Mr. Henry W. Grady at the banquet of the New England society, will give the cue to the addresses, which will cover a wide field. The preface which accompanies the constitution and by-laws of the society is as follows:

The present seems a fitting time for the estab ishment of a southern society. We have already in New York societies for the preservation of many of the distinctive elements of our national character. The New England society perpetuates the Puritan virtues that have given to the American ome of his best and most endurable characteristics. The St. Patrick's alliance cherishes and for ters those admirable traits and qualities imparted to us by the Celtic race. The Holland society preerves and exalts the excellencies of our Dutch an cestors. The Huguenot, St. Andrew and various other eminent and flourishing societies claim the full heritage of moral intellectual worth bequeathed to us by the illustrious ancestors they

Since the abolition of slavery the distinct and peculiar social organization of the old south has be come so essentially modified by the exigencies of the change in its political economy that it has prac-tically ceased to exist, and the south of today forms but one compound and concordant part of a now homogenous whole. But the best of the old influences still survive and will be long recognized as formative agents in the development of the national character.

Now that the prejudices engendered by the war are dead, we, who are of southern birth or ancestry, believing that the south has contributed her quota of what is good in American life, would organize to perpetuate what is best in the customs, manner and characters of our ancestors. With such objects this society has been formed, and, to be effective, should act with promptness, since the knowledge to be preserved rests in large measure in the memories of those whose lease of life cannot now have long to run.

To effect these purposes, the society will gather all existing books and writing illustrative of southern life; will endeavor to induce and encourage those peculiarly cognizant of southern traditi and customs to commit their knowledge to writing that it be not lost, and will honor and promote authors who have written or shall write upon these subjects, and will undertake to fix and set forth the influence of the southern element in the develop-ment of the national character. The society will not trench upon the domain of controversial his-tory, or permit the discussion or introduction of po-litical or sectional differences, but will devote itself to the commemoration of so manners and character.

A further and not the least imperiant purpose of the society will be the promotion of the acquaint ance and social intercourse of southern residents of New York, the extension of proper courtesies to near-resident southerners, who may from time to time visit the city and desire to avail themselves of the privileges and advantages which the society may provide, and the proffer of sympathy and a helping hand to deserving cases of misfortune or distress among us. As the membership warrants the outlay, the society will provide full and proper conveniences for the due fulfilment of its social Such are the aims and ends of those who have founded this society. It is believed that they will meet with general approval. In the completion and execution of the details through which they will be made effective, the suggestion and co-ope ation of all southerners are carnestly besought.

All this is admirable, and it is none the less admirable if, as may happen, the society should fail to carry out to the very letter so extensive a programme. It will be sufficient for all purposes if the organization shall be able to preserve and perpetuate all that is worthy of preservation and perpetuation in the old civilization of the south

Johnny Crapean Carries Off the Pie It has been understood all along that the oming American novelist would portray the romantic side of our great civil war. From time to time critics, essayists and other piddlers in literature have called attention to this inviting theme. But it was agreed that there were difficulties in the way. It would not do to serve up our fratricidal struggle as a literary tid-bit until its rough edges had been worn off by time. It was generally admitted that our coming nov elist would find his pie somewhere in this direction, but just here our literateurs came to a full stop. They suggested, predicted and did everything but tackle the subject in earnest.

And now a nimble little Frenchman e lges his way through the crowd and captures the prize. This bold raider is Jules Verne, and it goes without saying that he has helped himself to everything in sight. The title of his forthcoming story, "North and South; a Romance of the Civil War in America," is a sufficient intimation that he is dealing with a big thing in a big way.

It is a pity that Johnny Crapean should have stolen a march on us, but we deserved it. For nearly a generation our coming novelists, for there were two of them, northerner and a southerner, have been glowering at each other, and bragging about the great unwritten war novel. It is useless to damn Jules Verne's story in advance. He has shown his ability to interest the million, and the verdict of the literary upper ten will not count. After all, what an author wants is to be read by the million. The patronage of the upper ten would not support him. The Frenchman will give us a virile, vivid and graphic story. He may be a little behind on facts, but a man with his imagination can get along without facts. Perhaps our dilatory, namby-pamby novelists needed just such a lesson. At any rate, they have lost their pie, and when we taste it we shall be made to feel that it is an important luxury.

Bismarck on Guard. When the opponents of the army bill lay stress upon the peaceful relations existing between France and Germany, Bismarck is ready for them. The veteran statesman's picture of the situation is well calculated to veite alarm . "We live in a state of peace." he said, the other day, "but look at the French preparations. Look at the building of barracks. Look at General Boulanger's position. Think of the general outcry of the French Patriotic League during sixteen years, and France!" This is a strong way of putting it, and,it is justified by the facts of the case. France is undoubtedly on a better war footing than Germany. Her preparations are utterly irreconcilable with her pacific profession then consider what we have to fear from Beyond all question she means to fight. Bismarck is tired of this state of affairs He prefers the clash of arms to "the dreadful note of preparation." It has been hinted that he may forestall the approaching struggle on the septennate bill by precipitating the country into a war with France. The wisdom of such a policy would be questionable, but just at present it is difficult to suggest a policy that would be wise.

Macon's New Move.

We congratulate the people of Macon on the citizens' meeting, the procedings of which were reported in yesterday's Consti-TUTION. In all sincerity and earnestness we hope that that meeting is but the beginning of a co-operative campaign that will double Macon's population and wealth.

We do not set Atlanta up as an example.

but in the matter of co-operation there is perhaps no city in America that cannot find useful lessons in the record of this city. This was the only Georgia city that was rebuilt entirely after the war. There were no rich men to begin and maintain the work of converting the waste of ashes into a prosperous metropolis. Almost everybody was well-todo, but few were rich in the larger sense of the word. The people realized that only by general and active co-operation could anything effective be done, consequently they came together, each man contributed his mite, each did his share of the work, each took part in the canvass of the city] The result was magical. Everything that was attempted was made a success. What would have discouraged one man was easy work to a hundred. When one contingent thought of stopping work, the others were ready with encouraging words, so that through cooperation-through the shoulder to shoulder principle-Atlanta has been converted in twenty years from a pile of shes to a city of 65,000 people, that supports seventy churche, sends 7,000 children to free schools and has eight million dollars invested in manufac-

When Macon learns the value of co-oper ative principle she will find the rest easy. When she can interest two hundred of he most active citizens in the growth and progress of the city, there is nothing within reason she cannot accomplish. We say, God speed that day. The good-natured rivalry between Macon and Atlanta should embitte neither, but inspire both. We believe we speak for the people of Atlanta when we wish Macon the best that can come to her, or promise that whatever she may do Atlanta will try to do a little better, so that by the force of competition and of example each city will help the other.

THE SCORPIONS OF MEXICO. Habits of a Common Pest--Effects of the Sting -- A Happy Family.

Fannie B. Ward in Boston Transcript. One of the most common pests in Mexico are the alcarans, or scorpions, for during certain seasons of the year they are as numerous as flies around a sugar house. They are within the cracks of the wall, between bricks of the tiles of the floor, hiding inside your garments, darting everywhere with inconceivable rapidity, their tails (the "business end" which holds the sting) ready to fly up and you disturb a flourishing colony of them; shake your shoes in the morning, and out they sliop; throw your bath sponge into the water, and half dozen of them dart out of its cool depths, into which they had wriggled for a siesta; in short, every article you touch must be treated like a dose of medicine-"to be well shaken before taken. If The average scorpion is mahogany-hued, and a cut two inches long; but I have seen them las long as five inches. The small, yellowish variety are considered most dangerous, and their bite is most apprehended at midday. In Durango they are black and so alarmingly numerous—habeen allowed to breed for centuries in the des mines—that the government offers a reward per head (or rather per tail) to whoever will kill them. Their sting is seldom fatal, but it is more or less severe, according to the state of the system. Victims have been known to remain for days in convulsions, foaming at the mouth, with stomach swelled as in dropsy; while others do not suffer much more than from a bee sting. The com-mon remedies are brandy, taken in sufficient quantitles to stupefy the patient, ammonia, adminis tered both externally and internally, boiled silk and guaiacum. It is also of use to press a large key, or other tube, on the wound to force out part of the

As most of my readers are aware, this species of insect—a genus of Arachnida, of the order naria—are distinguished from other spiders ing the abdomen articulated, with a sharp, curved spur at the extremity, beneath which are two pores from which the venom flows, supplied by two poison glands at the base of the segment. The anterior pair of feet, or palpi, are modified into pincers or claws, like those of the lobster, by pincers or claws, like those of the looser, by which it seizes its prey, while the other feet resemble those of ordinary spiders. Natural-ists divide the genus into sub-genera, ac-cording to the number of their eyes, whether six, eight or twelve. They eat the eggs of spiders and also feed on beetles and other insects, piercing the prey with their stingers again and again before beginning the meal. When alarmed or irritated a scorpion "shows fight" immediately, running about and waving his sting in all direc-tions, for attack or defense, evidently aware of its

The young scorpions are produced at astonish ingly frequent intervals, the mother displaying far more regard for her offspring than their vicious natures seem to justify. During their brief infancy she carries them about clinging in great numbers to her back, limbs and tail, never leaving her retreat for a moment, unless, overburdened by their weight her hold relaxes from the wall and down falls the whole happy family in a wad. The un grateful children generally reward the maternal de rotion by destroying the mother as soon as they are old enough, tearing her piecemeal with the greatest ferocity.

Betsy and I amuse ourselves by studying their habits, and have become expert in catching them by the tail with lassos of thread, afterward suspend-ing them in bottles of alcohol to send to micro-scopically inclined friends. Happening to be out of alcohol one day, we put a captured scorpion into an empty bottle. Remembering it a week later, we went to look, when lo! where one had been were now fifty-seven; but whether it was only the mother and her children, or if the original scorpson had arrived at the dignity of a great-grandparent that length of time, was food for conjecture. He pily this rapidity of increase is offset by their t.renmity toward all others of their kind, and t perpetual warfare they wage upon one another thins their ranks more than any other cause. Scorpions are said to harbor an especial spite against brunettes, and to leave blonde people conafter pulling out the sting, a "crunchy" sort of morcean, as delightful, no doubt, to them as are smalls, frogs, crabs and American appetites.

Smallpox carried off Tung-che, the late emperor of China, at the age of eighteen, on January 12, 1875. It is the custom in China for the sovereign to appoint his successor from the members of his family of a younger generation than his own. This Tung-che had neglected to do. The widow of his predecessor, Hungfung, joined with Prince Ch'un, her brother-in-law, and brought about the election of Tsai-tien, the sou of Prince Ch'un, as emperor, and for the first son of Prince Ch'un, as emperor, and for the first time in the annals of the Tsing dynasty the suc-cession to the throne passed out of the direct line. The dowager empress herself became regent. She was a woman of great tact and skill, and had been regent after the death of her husband during the ninority of Tung-che.

Tsai-tien, who succeeded under the title of Kwang-sen, or "succession of glory," is the ninth emperor of China of the Tartar dynasty of T'sing, which succeeded the native dynasty in the year 1644. The surname of the samily is Gioro-that is golden—and, according to tradition, was given to their first ancestral chief, Aisin Gfora, because he was the sonof a divine virgin. About the year 1730 the tribe of Tartars to which the family belonged drove out the native rulers and occupied the northern provinces of China. Pekin was their capital for many years, and in the course of time the present T'sing dynasty of emperors was found ed by them. The word "T'sing," which means pure, was adopted as a surname to signify what would be the character of the administration which they set up. Trai-tien was born on August 15, 1871. He was, therefore, a little more than three years of age when he was carried, "cross and sleepy as he was," in the presence of the conclave of Manchu princes, princessess, and the dowager empress and the empress mother, who meet in one of the segret chambers, of the palace. met in one of the secret chambers of the palace and there solemnly declared Tsai-tien as

ON THE CARRIBEAN SEA.

A Tale of a Modern Slave Trading Expe-From the Detroit Free Press. I propose herewith to relate the history of a

I propose herewith to relate the history of a crime committed fourteen years ago in the city of Jacksonville, Fla., and of which I have had gully knowledge ever since. When I first learned, near Pernambuco, Brazil, of what had actually been done a few weeks before, I was too young to fully comprehend the gravity of the affair, though I recollect experiencing a certain rense of indignation, and this has grown steadily with the lapse of time. I have not kept the matter secret through any desire to shield the guilty parties, but have never been able, for am I now able, to discern how they might have been reached and punished.

At the close of the war, in 1866, all those confederates who had been fighting on principle admitted their failure, laid down their arms and returned to the peaceful walks of life, to rebuild, if possible, the fortunes that had been wasted. But something like 120 irrepressibles spit upon the amnesty offered them, and, heaping imprecations to the peaceful walks of life, to reput the samesty offered them, and, heaping imprecations true the the fortunes that had been wasted. But some thing like 120 irrepressibles spit upon the amnesty offered them, and, heaping imprecations upon the destroyers of the institution of slavery, left the country and became residents of Mexico. Prood, imperious and haughty as these men were, and never having filled a position other than to command, their success in the capital of the Mexicans was that indifferent. In short, their incomes could use but indifferent. In short, their incomes could not be made to equal their expenses, and within five years fifty of the most unfortunate had returned, broken in spirits, health and finances to their na-

On the morning of October 4, 1872, I was sitting according to the piling at the edge of the wharf in Jacksonville, with notebook and pencil in hand, soorsonvine, with noterook and penci in hand, sor-ing down the dimensions of certain live oak im-bers and planks as the scalers measured them and called out their cubic contents. Our vessel, the barkentine Maple Leaf, was being loaded with barkentine Maple Leaf, was being loaded with these timbers for use in bridge building on the Panamia railroad. For an hour or more the salors had been watching a small, full-rigged brig that had appeared on the broad, black boson of the St. Johns, and was slowly making her way to the pier without the aid of a ing, and having every one of her patched and dirty salls set to catch the almost imperceptible breeze. Along toward evening the vessel reached the wharf and tied up, and three tall, hard-featured men, each with a gripsack in hand, came shore wharf and tied up, and three tall, hard-featured men, each with a gripsack in hand, came ashore and struck out for the nearest hotel without ut-tering a word. A black curly-haired man, who seemed to command the little brig, was left giving orders in Mexican to his crew of three hands.

"Hulle, Greaser!" called out our captain, who had been watching the whole proceeding: "why didn't you take the tug at the mouth of the river and be towed up?"

"Me no sabe."
"Den't sabe, eh? How would a good squaredrink whisky strike you about this time of day

"Si, si! Me sabe whisky. Me sabe damn! "Of course. Your knowledge of the English language is not very extensive, that's certain; but in the small amount that you have acquired you seem to have selected its brightest gems. Come up seem to have selected its brightest gems. Come up the ladder and take something."

Whisky may not be in all respects the equal of the common school in calculating a knowledge of the English language, but in the case of this Mexican captain its effect was such that within two hours after joining our captain in his cabin he managed to convey the facts that his vessel had been chartered by the three gentleman who first been chartered by the three gentlemen who first came ashore, and that they had come to engage a cargo of negro laborers to work in a tobacco fac-tory of theirs in the City of Mexico. When the Mexican had returned to his brig, and I had finished writing up the day's log after supper, Captain Ellsworth turned to me and said: "Steward, there's something all-fired strange about this thing."

"What thing?" I asked. "Why, this rotten little brig, with its dirty sails, its dirty crew, and the three shabby aristocrats who have chartered her—they are not over-clean

"Probably engaged in a dirty business" I say-'Correct," said he. "If they wanted niggers for factory hands why didn't they stop at New Or-leans—the French niggers are the smartest of all, and can be had by the cargo. Or, why didn't they stop at Pensacola? Why did they come clear around here to Jackson ville for a load of country bucks, the laziest and dullest of the whole caboodle? Another thing: Mexicans can be hired cheaper than niggers can be boarded, and will do twice the work. What do you make out of it?"

"I make this out of it," said 1: "That Mexican captain has lied to you."

"No, he hasn't. Those fellows may have lied to him when they chartered his brig, but he was straight enough with me, that's sure." straight enough with me, that's sure."

Next morning Captain Ellsworth called at the hotel, but the three men had gone. "I used to know one of those men before the war," said the landlord. "He was a big planter up here in Alabama, just over the line, and when I recognized him last night he said he was going back to get

In three days the Maple Leaf was loaded and ready to sail, but the evening before we were to sail Captain Ellsworth attended a fandango, got into an altercation, was arrested and released on his personal parole to appear one week from the day of arraignment for trial. In vain he pleaded with the local magistrate to set the trial for the next day—the complainant knew the captain's anxiety to sail and insisted upon his "righta." The anxiety to sail and insisted upon his "rights." The week passed tediously away, and Ellsworth remarked that he wished he had gone to jail instead of being released on personal bail. "As it is," said he," I am bound upon honor to stay and pay my fine. If I had gone to jail I could have bicked the old rattletrap to pieces the first night and been half way to Aspinwall by this time."

On the second day of our delay the three char-

They immediate-ly went on board; a couple of dray loads of pro-visions were taken in, and in less than an hour the brig bad cast off and was floating down with the current and the tide. A clump of leaning cypress trees, with long gray mosses streaming from the trees, with long gray mosses streaming limbs, hid the ragged sails from sight at about the same moment the hymn which the col-ored people had been singing ceased to reach the ear. There was certainly something singular about the whole transaction.

We had left Aspinwall nearly a week, hav-

"The Immaculate Mexican!"

This was the name the crew had applied to the unclean brig that had loaded the negroes at Jack-sonville, and all hands were soon looking at the patched sails and black pennant of their old acquaintance, as she rapidly approached us.

"What in Sancho is that brig doing down here?"
said Captain Ellsworth. "There's something wrong, by hokey. Make signals for her to heave to and we'll speak her.' In half an hour the Mexican captian was in our In haif an hour the Mexican capitan was non-skipper's cabin drinking clear whisky by the cup-ful. At the end of another hour he was lowered to his boat and both vessels resumed their course. "It's about as I expected," said El'sworth at the supper table. "Those chaps took the negroes to Brazil, landed at St. Cynthia, so the Mexican says, and he didn't dare refuse to obey their order."

"And whet have they done with them?" I asked.

"And what have they done with them?" I asked.

Speaking of money reminds me of the funsy banking system they have in Bolivia. Courterist money is as current as good money and passes just as well. At a hotel in La Paz I could hear the workings of a counterfeit press in the room my own. A former American consul in one Bollvian cities sold his press to my English panion. Another of our diplomatic corps in Belivia had 100 kegs of nails sent him from New York. There were a few nails laid in the tops and bottom of the kegs, but the main contents were counterfelt silver pieces. The consul was not at hemse when the kegs arrived at his warehouse. A brother in law [of President Dosa of the B-livian republic wanted some nails about the time, and the consul's secretary sold him a dozen, her An exposure was prevented by the consul going haives with the brother-in-law on the counterfeit cter Crenshaw and Revenue Agent Chapmat Cambatants—How the Difficulty Began and How it Ended—Two Different Versions of the Trouble—Both Statements.

Yesterday it was rumored in the streets that prercentre had taken place in the custom house between Internal Collector Crenshaw and Revenue Agent Chapman.

Various versions of the difficulty were given by the friends of the respective combatants, and it was hard to ascertain the exact facts. There were no eye-witnesses to the affair save the principals themselves. A representative of THE CONSTITUTION visited the office of Collector Crenshaw to get his side of the story. The collector was immersed in business when the reporter geneanced his mission, but he pushed aside his letters and papers and courteously consented to make a statement for publication. He remarked before proceeding to give his parrative that it was exceedingly distasteful to him to appear in print, but, since the occasion seemed to require that he should make a statement, he would not flinch from the unpleasant ordeal.

"Please, then," said the reporter, "tell me exactly how the difficulty between yourself and Colonel Chapman happened."

"I will begin at the very beginning and tell you all," replied Mr. Crenshaw, as he wheeled around his chair and faced the reporter. The reporter's note book and pencil were suddenly drawn from his pocket, and he proceeded to make a faithful report of

COLLECTOR CRENSHAW'S NARRATIVE:
"This morning, between 9 and 10 o'clock'
Revenue Agent Chapman came into my office in a determined and excited manner, so much so that it gave me the impression that he came for a difficulty. I at once determined to treat him courteously and at the same time act in a calm and dignified manner. He first asked me whether or not Deputy Collector Ware was engaged, and I informed him that I did not think he was and he was at his service. Mr. Chapman then took a seat near me and stated that man then took a seat hear he and satety that he came in again to see me in regard to the removal of Mr. Chisholm. I told him I was very sorry to hear it; that he had praviously approached me on the same subject and I hoped that he would not continue to annoy me in regard to Mr. Chisolm's removal. I will state here that Mr. Chapman came to me several days ago, and informed me that he had understood that I was going to remove Mr. Chisholm and he had cometo insist upon my not doing so. That I had made up my mind to remove him, and had selected his successor, and had notified Mr. Chisholm early in January that he could be prepared to go out on the 1st of March. Mr. Chapman then said that he did not often interfere in such matters, but in this case he should oppose the removal of Mr. Chisholm. I very politely stated to him that my mind was made up and I could not change my decision. He then asked me who I had determined to appoint in the place of Mr. Chisholm I replied, Mr. L. T. Moses, of the county of Coweta, and so had informed Mr. Moses, and that Mr. Moses was at present preparing himself for his duties as Mr. Chisholm's sor. 'A brother of Congressman Volume and I replied, no a nephew.' I be the same gentlemen came into the manufacture and Mr. Chapman retired.

The same and Mr. Chapman retired.

The same asked and add no exasion to approach me asked did a zerowed no feeling, whatever, but politely answered his questions.

A HEATED INTERVIEW.

"To return to this morning's occurence, as I had stated to Mr. Chapman that I did not want him to continue to annoy me about this matter. I further stated that I thought I had made myself fully underit of; that my determination to remove Mr. Chisholm was unalterable, with the hope that the matter would end. I stated to Mr. Chapman that I would like to be able to express myself with sufficient clearness to convince him that my mind was fixed upon the removal of Mr. Chisholm. I stated to Mr. Chapman that I thought I understood his duties as a revenue thought I understood his duties as a revenue agent; that I knew where his authority started and where it ended; that, in this matter, he was making himself officious, intermeddling in the organization of my district, and that I would not permit him to do so; that he was destroying the efficiency of my force, and that such conduct was liable to create insubordination and destroy all discipline, and that I hoped the matter would end here.

"Mr.Chapman then stated that if I removed Mr.Chisholm, he believed, and would charge that I had done so simply for the reason that Chisolm had been instrumental in the seizure of Crawford's distillery. I then informed Mr. Chapman, when I was called on to prove the proper source, I was prepared and ready to give my reasons for the removal of Mr. Chisholm. That I recognized the right of the commissioner to call for such reasons, and I then asked if the commissioner had instructed him to call upon me for my reasons for removing Mr. Chisholm, and wished to know of him if he had been so and wished to know of him if he had been so directed by the commissioner. He replied that he had not been so instructed by the commissioner. Mr. Chapman, in an excited manner, said he had refrained from reporting many things in regard to my deputies that he should have reported. I then replied that if he had been in possession of any information that ought to have been reported and neglected to do so that it was no fault of mine. That I had always in my conversations with him urged him to report any neglect of duty on the part of my deputies, or any improper conduct that am to report any negreet of daty on the part of my deputies, or any improper conduct that came to his knowledge, with the view of improving the efficiency of my force.

Mr. Chapman then said that I had been guilty of suppressing information and covering up frauds against the revenue, instead of exposing them. I replied: 'If you make that assertion, you state what is untrue and what you know to be false at the time you state it.' I was sitting in my chair at my desk. Mr. Chapman then rushed upon me, seizing my arm with his left hand, placing his right hand in his right hand pocket, saying: 'I will kill you or make you take that back.'

"By this time the language between us was or make you take that back.'

"By this time the language between us was in a very loud tone. I replied: 'I will die in my tracks before I will retract it.' He repeat d several times: 'I will kill you if you do not retract it.' I continued to repeat: 'I will die in my tracks before I will take it back,' and said that he nor no other man on the top of the earth could come into my office and make such assertions without my hurling the insult back into his teeth, with all the emphasis in me. The loud conversation being heard by those in the adjoining room, they rushed in.

AT CLOSE QUARTERS.

AT CLOSE QUARTERS.

Mr. Chapman caught me by the throat and began to choke me. I was determined to use only such force upon him as was necessary to repel the assault. By this time I had loosened his hold upon my throat, and I then stated that he had come into my office and assaulted me while in the discharge of my official duties. That I would not so forcet myself as to do enveloping upbe. discharge of my official duties. That I would not so forget myself as to do anything unbecoming the dignity of an officer; that I had to much respect for the government to do anything unbecoming the dignity of an officer during my term of service, or to do anything that would bring the service into disrepute. That the president having reposed confidence in me by my appointment, I should never be guilty of anything which would forfeit that confidence.

"At this juncture Mr. Chapman denied the assertion I had made that he put his hand in his right hand pocket to draw some weapon upon me, and he cried: 'Search me; I have no pistol.' I replied: 'I do not charge you with having a bistol, but I do say you have a knife in your at thand pocket.' Mr. Chapman replied: on have a knife also in your pocket.' This I do and proved by showing the ins'de of all bockets. I then demanded Mr. Chapman ow the contents of his right hand pocket.

and when he did so a knife was drawn therefrom. During this colloquy an mann-r of epithets, such as 'you lilar,' you infernal liar,' fell from his lips. I replied, that

MR. CHAPMAN WITHDRAWS,

Recognizing the duty I owed the government to conduct myself with decency under all cirto conduct myself with decency under all circumstances, I could not join in with him and handy epithets with him. None of the gentlemen who cameinto the room interfered in any manner whatever. They simply looked in silent amazement. Captain Irish made some remark which I did not catch. At this time Mr. Chapman took his departure. I have a clear conscience that I have done my duty as an officer, and I feel that the interest of the government has in no instance in instance. interest of the government has in no instance suffered by any omission on my part or neglect of duty since I assumed the office of collector on the 1st of May, 1885. In all my official ac-tions I have endeavored to the utmost of my ability to fairly and impartially execute the law. In the matter of all violation of the law I have known no friends. I have treated all I have known no friends. I have treated all alike, and challenge the proof to the contrary. When I assumed the duties of collector I adopted the policy to appoint a new force of deputies and other subordinate officers. I found Mr. Chisholm then serving as a deputy collector. I think he was first appointed by Andew Clark, a republican collector, and has served in some capacity or other, since the date of his first appointment by Mr. Clark. I informed first appointment by Mr. Clark. I informed Mr. Chisholm that I would not permanently retain him; that when I got ready to appoint his successor I would give him thirty days notice. In accordance with this, I notified him early in January that I had selected his successor and would relieve him from further service on the first day of March next. I am sure I have first day of March next. I am sure I have selected a good, reliable, competent, faithful democrat, who has never held office under a republican administration. From trustworthy information I have received, I am clearly satisfied that Mr. Chapman's grievances sprang solely from the fact of my determination to remove Mr. Chisholm. I am confident of my ability to disprove any charges which Mr. Chapman may set up against my integrity as Chapman may set up against my integrity as Colonel Chapman, when called upon by the reporter, was disinclined to talk about the diffi-culty, but as soon as he was informed that Colector Crenshaw had unbosomed himself he agreed to make a statement of the affair.

WHAT MAJOR CHAPMAN SAID,
"It is my duty," said Major Chapman, "as revenue agent, t) report to the commissioner of internal revenue on the efficiency, qualifications and standing of the men in the revenue tions and standing of the men in the revenue service. Mr. Crenshaw has to give a bond of $100,000 as collector and $15,000 as disbursing $100,000 as collector and $15,000 as disbursing agent. One of his bondsmen is a man named I. D. Crawford, who in the name of Willis Sander, an ignorant negro, this been running a distillery near Hampton. There were rumors that Crawford was violating the law. I went to work to investigate the matter without saying anything to Mr. Crenshaw about it. I was aided by Deputy Marshal Kellogg and by Mr. Chisholm, and in January we got all the necessary evidence. We found that the fermenting capacity of the still was nineteen bushels, while the survey still was nineteen bushels, while the survey called for only eleven and a half. We also found that Crawford was 'crowding his mashes,' which is to say he was using more material than even the capacity of his still would indicate. We found that he had shipped from the Lovejoy depot alone 9,896 gallons of whisky, while he had paid tax on only 6,674 gallons, leaving 3,222 gallons on which the tax had not been paid. The assessments on this amount to $7,193. The first person we arrested was the negro Sanders, in whose name the distillary is still was nineteen bushels, while the survey negro Sanders, in whose name the distillery is being run. When arrested the negro said he had nothing to do with the distillery and that the only thing that he got out of it was $12 per month in money, twelve pounds of meat and a bushel of meal. We arrested Crawford and J. H. Davis, the storekeeper and gauger, and Chris Henderson, the distiller, Crawford was held in a bond of $5,000, Davis was held in a bond of $2,500, the negro was held in a bond of $2,500 and Chris. Henderson was held in a bond of $500. Crawford has offered to compromise by paying $1,700, and I understan! Mr. Crenshaw favors the compromise."

"But the fight?" "But the fight?"
"I am coming to that. About two weeks ago I told Collector Crenshaw that I heard he intended to remove Mr. Chisholm, and asked who he expected to put in his place. He said he intended to appoint Mr. L. T. Moses, of Coweta county. I asked him if Mr. Moses had had any experience in the service, and he said Meses had been a storekeeper and gauger for two months. I asked him if he had any charges against Mr. Chisholm, and he replied that he had none, but that he had told him at first that his appointment was temporary, and that as soon as he could dispense porary, and that as soon as he could dispense with his services he would do so. I told him I did not want to interfere, but that I thought he would be injuring the service by putting in men who were inexperienced."

"When I went into Mr. Crenshaw's office today," continued Major Chapman, "I inquired concerning the whereabouts of one of the men who is in the service, and after getting the desired information I asked Mr. Crenshaw if he was still determined upon removing Mr. Chisholm. He said that he was and that Mr. Chisholm would not held the position of deputy.

Chisholm. He said that he was and that Mr. Chisholm would not hold the position of deputy collector after the first of March. He said it in an excited way and added that I had no right to intertere in the organization of his district, and that I was creating insubordination among his officers. He continued the conversation in an excited way about what his duties were and said that I was exceeding mine. He said he could give proper reasons for the removal of Chisholm. I told him I had not come to demand the reasons, and only wanted to state to him, in a friendly way, that even then it was reported on the streets that he was going to remove Chisholm because Chisholm had been instrumental in ferreting out frauds committed by one of Cronshaw's bondsmen. That seemed to excite him a great deal more. I stated that so far was I from interferring with the organization of his district terferring with the organization of his district that I had refrained from making reports that I ought to have made, and, said I, You have suppressed information you ought to have reported. To that he answered: If you say I have suppressed any information I ought to have reported

Thereupon I got up and went to him and grabbed him by the throat and told him he had to take that back. He hollered to the men in the next room, calling lustily, for the door was closed. When the men came in I turned him loose and told him to sit down and behave himself. He kept on jowering like an old woman. He kept it up for several minutes, trying to create the impression that I had assaulted him. He said I was armed and I took Cantain I rish's hands and made him feel assaulted him. He said I was armed and I took Captain Irish's hands and made him feel of my pockets to see that I had no weapon. 'You've got a knife! You've got a knife! exclaimed Mr. Crenshaw. 'I suppose every man has a pocket knife,' I replied exhibiting mine. Thereupon Mr. Crenshaw turned his pockets wrongside outward to show that he had no knife. 'You choked me! he said. 'Yes, and any man in the office would have choked you if you had called him a liar,' I answered. 'It is your own duplicity that has brought all your trouble on you,' I said. 'If you had had the manliness to act as you ought to have acted you would have had no trouble.'" "What about his duplicity?" "Mr. Crenshaw has been this way: although aware of the unfitness of some of his subordi-

"Mr. Crenshaw has been this way: although aware of the unfitness of some of his subordinates, he has waited for me to report his own men to the commissioner and to see the men removed in that way, thus leading the men to think that the loss of their places was due solely to me. That is what I meant by his duplicity. That is the way he treated O'Farrell, of Athons, Mark Johnson and others. W. T. Trammell, a denoty collector, is mixed. w. T. vice thirteen years, and that several years ago, while he was a storekeeper and gauger at Crawford's distillery, Crawford offered him 45 cents a gallon on all the whisky he would allow smuggled out. The matter was reported and the distillery was broken up for the time being. Mr. Chisholm said also:

Mr. Crenshaw said nothing to me recently about removing me until I caught his bondsman defrauding the government. About two weeks ago he told me he would have to fill my place. I asked him if my work was not satisfactory. He said it was, but that Congressman Henry R. Harris had given him his place and that he wanted to favor him."

It is said that Mr. Crenshaw has given 55 of the offices at his disposal to fourth district men, most of them from Troup county, and that he has given only 34 offices to all the rest of the state put together.

"Yes, Chicago resembles Atlanta very much, only Chicago hasn't any artesian well run by machinery—you know Atlanta has the only artesian well of that kind in the world—but still they sin't half as well fixed up there as we are down here," said Mayor Cooper yesterday, as he gave a blind pauper, who has a bank account, a dollar bill.
"In what way are they not as well fixed?"
"Oh, in several ways. For instance, they don't have any agarle or new era beer up there like we have down here."
"And they don't have any prohibition lawt."
"Nixy prohi law. Why, do you know that that town puts out fire with good drinks. The Chicago river is a running stream of cocktails and the lakes are a body of champagne. When a fire alarm is sounded they pull out the stopper and let the drink run. You know that we went up there to study improvements to the fire department, and we found just what I told you to be true. Why, they even water their police force with beer."

"Yes, we weefe all introduced to her by Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago. Do you know that, Henry Tanner looked so much like Spies that several police men started to pull him in as a suspect. Well, it is true, and so often was Tanner stopped and asked if he wasn't Nina's husband that he got a permit from the mayor showing that he wasn't in the proxy business."

"Just so pleasant that I would like to go once a mouth. When we got there we put up at the Palmer—just think of that—and got a toothpick each. Then Tom McGill—everybody in Atlanta knows Tom—called to see us. You see, the bill poster had announced our coming. Soon after the chief of the fire department, and the mayor and John A Colvin, a democratic alderman, and a book agent, called upon us. We didn't want to see the book agent, but we did the others. We were shown over the city and saw everything worth seeing. We went to the Armour packing house—"

Mr. Raymond has always had a great many warm friends and admirers in Atlanta, but on no previous visit to the city has he met with quite as hearty a reception as has been given him at his three performances here this season. The audiences were remarkable, not less for their large numbers than for the enthusiasm which they exhibited. Last night the whole house reverberated with convulsive laughter at his every appearance. The ludicrous expression which planted itself on his face, and particularly about his mouth, when he endeavored to explain some new scheme, to the successful manipulators of which "There was millions in it," and the earnestness which characterized his arguments, would have made any one laugh. From first to last no more creditable performance has been given at DeGive's this season, and Mr. Raymond may well feel proud of the success he has achieved in the city, and ought to congratulate himself upon the excellence of his support througnout, especially Miss Helen Tracy, who interpreted the part assigned her in a manner well nigh faultless. Atlanta theater-goers will look forward with pleasure to the return of Mr. Raymond, and he can always count on a shaking welcome.

The Case Against P. Breitenbucher Stil — Hanging in Police Court.

Philip Breitenbucher, the wineroom man who manipulates the Globe in the Fitten building, on Marietta street, was arraigned in police court yesterday morning to answer the charge of iolating the prohibition law. The defendant apeared in court without an st torney, and entering plea of not guilty announce dhimself ready for rial. Judge Pendleton appeared for the city, and after swearing the witnesses, introduced as the first one Thomas Fuller, an ex-bailiff. "Mr. Fuller," asked the judge, "do you know where Mr. Breitenbucher's house is located:"

"Yes, sir."

"Yes, sir."
"Ever have anything to drink there?"
"Yes, sir."
"What?"

"Whisky,"
"Whisky, eh?"
"Yes, sir, whisky. I bought it by the drink and drank it out of small white mugs."
"What did you call for?"
"I don't remember; agaric or something of the kind."

kind."
"May it please your honor," said Mr. Breitenbucher, "I would like to have a continuance until tomorrow so that I can procure an attorney."
Judge Anderson agreed to continue the case until this morning when it will be reopened. It is understood that the defendant will make an attempt to refute the testimony of the witness. A long list of witnesses has been summoned.

The Forestry Congress.

DE FUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla., February 15—[Special.]
The southern states forestry congress assembled here this morning. Seventeen states are represented. The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Ellen Call Long, of Tallahassee, and responded to by President Pringle. Hon. B. G. Northrup, of Connecticut; Colonel S. R. Root, of Atlanta, and the Hon. B. E. Fernow, of Washington. President Pringle will address the assembly tomorrow on the urgent and immediate necessity of the south protecting its new valuable forests.

Shot by Moonlighters.

DUELIN, February 15.—Ambushed moon-lighters at Ballyear last night, fired upon a party of emergency men, mortally wounding one named Byers and dangerously injuring another named McManus and Police Sergeant O'Conner.

Damages forLive Stock. In the superior court yesterday there was filed a suit for $5,000 damages against the Georgia Pacific railway company. The plaintiff is J. L. Thase, and he complains that on the 19th of last October he placed on board a train on the said railway at Birmingham 159 head of live stock—horses and mules: that they were horses and mules; that they were to be transported to Atlanta. During the trip two horses and four mules died and nearly all the others were sick and suffered injury, which decreased their value. The plaintiff claims that the employes of the company failed to exercise due care and attention in handling the stock. His case is in the hands of Candler, Thomas & Candler.

Police Points.

J. R. Hammond, who was arrested day be-fore yesterday, was fined in police court ten dol-ars yesterday morning. Hammond is a stranger in the city. Wofford, Lizzie Martin and Della Mary Wofford, Lizzie Martin and Della Tucker, three negro women, were arrested yester-day, charged with the theft of a ring from Mrs. Carter, at 20 Wheat street. Sam Chum, a negro, raised quite a row on Marietta street last night and was arrested.

A Delightful Reception.

The most elegant social event of the pre the most eigant social event of the pre-lenter season was the afternoon reception given to Mrs. Oakes, of New York, by Mrs. Governor Bul-lock at her home on Peachtree street yesterday. The ladies are becoming very exclusive, and this was one of the fashionable events where gentle-men were not expected. men were not expected.

The feats of legerdemain performed by Kellar, the prince of conjurers, are none of the ordinary slight of hand affairs to which the old line of theatre-goers are accustomed. Kellar stands alone and supreme in the art diabolique, and no word description can do full justice to the mysteries of this remarkable personage. He charms you by a grace of manner that is bewitching, he entrances by the subtle powers which so greatly possesses and mystifies and bewilders you by the definess and dexterity with which he executes his remarkable feats. He is simply a marvel beyond the comprehension of the ordinary mortal and is one of those instances of where it is necessary to see in order to believe. His; performance is a succession of surprises, each succeeding one being more bewildering than its predecessor. He doesn't stoop to any of the old tricks that have for years been the stock in trade of the peripatetic magician, but entertains and amuses you with phenomena which baffle the most skillful and scientific to explain. And besides, he doesn't depend wholly upon his own efforts to present a performance. He has others equally as marvelous as himself. In fact, it has been truly called a combination of phenomena. D'Alvini, the Jap of Japs, as he is pleased to style himself, is equally as remarkable and quite as clever in his particular line as is the mysterious Kellar. He is quaint and original and is the superior of any equilibrist or juggler ever seen in this country. If Kellar startles and surprises you D'Alvini astonishes you by the manner in which he manlpulates anything upon which he lays his hands. If sact is a surpassingly strange and unique one and his finale the most sensational performance ever seen here. His clever little assistant Chisi Kitchie lends him valuable aid and also comes in for a fair share of attention and applause for his clever contortion act. There is a mustcian connected with the company who is as equally wonderful as are the others of this phenomenal combination. It is indeed a combination of p

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

Has been before the public fifteen years, and wherever introduced during that time has, on account of its purity and great merit, superseded very largely all other similar preparations for producing delicious, light and healthful bread material.

The manufacturers of CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER, recognizing the fact that the public have a right to know what they are using as food, have for many years published their formula, which has been confirmed by analyses made by the Government chemists, State chemists and leading scientists of various States, showing that their Baking Powder contains only purest grape cream of tartar, bicarbonate of soda and a little wheat flour, the latter to preserve the strength of the powder, and that it does not contain ammonia, alum, lime, or any adulteration whatever-The public thus has not only the assurance that CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER is "absolutely pure," but also a knowledge of all the ingredients that enter into its manufacture. This latter information is too often withheld by other baking powder companies.

The scurrilous advertisements of rival manufacturers will not deter the citizens of this vicinity from giving an article so flatteringly recommended as CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER the trial which its merits so justly

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange. NEW YORK, February 15 .- The opening in stocks this morning was tame and rather heavy, although changes from last evening's final figures were for insignificant fractions only. Business was of decidedly retail character even in early dealings, except for three or four stocks. There were some slight advances in first few minutes, but later prices yielded small fractions under efforts of the bears, though material decline was made in North-eastern during the forenoon. Some slight improve-ment was made after that time in an extremely dull market, which was soon neutralized by an attack upon Union Pacific, made on a report that a large holder of that stock had died. Better feeling was shown in the last hour, however, and the market closed steady to firm, close to opening figures. The total business was 205,000 shares. The fibral changes show a majority of losses, which, owever, in no case exceeded 5% per cent. Exchange dull but steady at 486@489. Money easy at 2\%@4. closing offered at 1\%. Sub-treasury balances: Coin $132,701,000; currency $12,077,000. Governments dull and heavy, 4s 1281/2;3s 100 bid. State bonds dull but steady.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, February 15—Wheat and pork took CHICAGO, February 15—Wheat and pork took opposite roads today. Wheat was again very weak, the market closing it lower than yesterday, while pork was active and buoyant, and closed 57½600 higher than yesterday. The wheat market opened steady on favorable cablejadvices, the starting price for May delivery being 79½6 and advancing to 80c, but fell back from that point to 79½6, rallied again, owing to the strength shown in pork, then fell back beautily to 75½6 with offerings all the way. back heavily to 78% with offerings all the way down, and closed for the day at 78%. Export clear-ings were moderate, aggregating 183,000 bushels from three Atlantic ports, and receipts were fair. from three Atlantic ports, and receipts were fair.

Corn followed wheat very closely, Speculation offerings were quite free, under which prices dropped of Mc and closed at inside figures. Receipts continue fair, while the shipping demand is less urgent.

Increased arrivals of oats had a weakening in fluence on the speculative market, and prices ruled Me lower, closing for the day at bottom figures. Provisions were active throughout. The feeling was unsettled and excited with frequent and occasionally wide fluctuations in prices. Buyers were anxious to take hold of mess pork early in the ses-sion, and offerings at the start were quite liberal. The temper soon turned bullish, May delivery ad vancing from $13.70 to $14.35, fell back to $14.20, but rallied and closed at $14.30. One of the causes assigned for the reaction was a belief that the free offerings of the past two or three days had centered in the hands of men who are supposed to hold the bulk of products here. This tended to make the shorts nervous, and caused them to cover outstanding contracts very freely.

Lard closed 71/010c higher and short ribs 271/00 30c higher.

HE DESERTED HER.—Eliza C. Jenkins yesterday filed a suit for divorce against her hushand, William D. Jenkins. The two united their destiny February 20th, 1876, and lived together happily until about the first of Janary, 1881, when Jenkins began maltreating her. Subsequently he abandoned her. John A. Wimpy is conducting the plaintiff's case.

BONDED WAREHOUSE BURNED.—The bonded warehouse belonging to J. B. Patrick and situated in Spalding county, was burned to the ground night before last. The building contained a large quantity of whisky, which was destroyed. Yesterday Collector Crewshaw neelved a telegram stating the above facts. It is not known whether the fire was accidental the work of an incendiary.

PARKER-STEWART.-Miss Hollie Stewart ras united in marriage vesterday afternoon to Mr. W. Frank Parker, of Savannah. The cer-emony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, on West Hunter street, in the presence of a few relatives and friends only, presence of a few relatives and friends only, the Rev. Dr. Wilson officiating. After the certmony the bride and g com were driven to the mion passenger depot in time for the 6:35 train, upon which they left for Savannah.

HE ABUSED HER .- In the superior court resterday a suit for total divorce was filed by Mrs. Ellen Brown against her husband, Andrew Brown. The petitioner avers that she married the defendant July 21, 1883, and lived with him till the 28th of July, 1885, when she was compelled to separate from him. He beat her. He choked her. She was apprehensive lest he would kill her. She petitions for a divorce on the above grounds. Gartrell & Ladson are her attorneys.

THEY RAN TOGETHER. - A West Point engine and a Central switch engine ran r yesterday afternoon about one o'clock, the Mitchell street crossing and the street bridge. Both engines were mov-fair pace when they struck, and each asiderably barked up about the front. chinery was, however, not damaged, short time the engines were gliding rights and over the switches. The n withcaused by an open switch.

PRIMERTARY DINNER TO MR. KIM Mr. H. I. Kimball at 8 o'clock tonight hnball house. It will be given by a second his friends in Atlanta. Mr. Kimball is here on a visit for a few days and will leave for the north tomorrow, where he is engaged as inspector general of agencies for the Equitable Life insurance company. The banquet will be one of the finest of the season and is a deserved compliment to a man who has dere much effective work for Atlanta.

DIED YESTERDAY MORNING .- Mrs. Sarah Mirror died yesterday morning at her daugh-ter's home on Magnolia street. Mrs. Mercer's home is near Montgomery, Ala., and her death will be a surprise to her many friends in that eity, as well as those in Atlanta. Mrs. Mercer came to Atlanta about four weeks ago to visit her mother, Mrs. C. P. Knight. Soon after her arrival she was seized with a severe cold, which terminated in pneumonia. The body was taken down to Montgomery, on the West Point train last night, and will be interred in the family burying, ground about eight miles the family burying ground, about eight miles from that city, tomorrow.

A DISTILLERY SEIZED.—United States Deputy Marshal J. B. Strong made a raid upon the illicit distillery in Rabun county, owned and operated by Peter M. Lovell and Marion M. Crawford, and captured both proprietors. The copper still was gone and there was not much in the building, but the raiding party got fitten tubs, 1,100 gallons of beer and fifteen gallons of low-wines, all of which was destroyed. Lovell and Crawford, in the custody of the officer, started for Atlanta. When in a DISTILLERY SEIZED. - United States Denu of the officer, started for Atlanta. When in a lonely place Crawford made a break and succeeded in getting away. Lovell was committed to Fulton county jail in default of bail.

A HEAVY DAMAGE SUIT .- Hattie Connolly ow of Jordon Connolly, who was killed by a train on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, the 26th of January of this year, has instituted suit against the company for $15,000. Messrs, Gartroll & Ladson are conducting her cause. She alleges that her husband died at his post of duty; that he was carrying out the command of his superior officer when he was the command of his superior officer when he was killed; that he was employed as a brake-man and train hand on a freight train; that he jumped off while the train was in rapid mo-tion and fell under the wheels. He died in a few hours. The plaintiff further avers that her husband realized how dangerous it would be to jump from the moving train and objected to do so, but the conductor in charge, who she alleges was drunk, compelled him to execute his orders and in seeking to carry them out he lost his life.

THROWN FROM A LADDER.—Carrie Hilliard Thrown From a Ladder.—Carrie Hilliard, a small white girl living on Cain street, near the branch, was quite seriously hurt yesterday afternoon at her home. Frank Hilliard, the child's father, placed a ladder against the side of the house and went upon the roof to fix a chimney. While he was upon the roof his daughter. Carrie, started to climb up the ladder. No one saw her to warn her of the dauger mail she was over half way up. Then her mother, when coming out of the house, called to her to come down. The mother's tone frightened the child so that she pushed the hadder to one side, causing it to fall. The fall was a hard one, and knocked the child sense. was a hard one, and knocked the child sense-less. A messenger was sent for a physician and Dr. Westmoreland responded. He found that the child had been injured about the head and that two ribs had been broken. Her inpries are considered serious, but not necessarily dangerous.

AT THE SECOND BAPTIST .- The first night church. For over two hundred years the Bap-tists of Charleston have not only been self-taining but have sent missionaries to differ-ts of the world, and this is the first time thistery that they have had to call for

THE PIEDMONT FAIR.

THE PROPOSED FAIR ON A REGU-

Talk With Mr. H. I. Kimball, Who Was Director General of the Cotton Expo-sition-He Says the Fledmont Fair Will Be a Grand Scheme,

The Piedmont exposition boom is "on." The State Agricultural society makes five or six thousand dollars a year clear of expenses on its annual fairs. It has no expense, whatever, except to go to the grounds when the keys are turned over to it, with every building in order and the city of Macon paying the expenses of the police. It has no expense except to run the fair and pay the premiums. The gate receipts and sales of privileges have put five or six thousand dollars of net profit yearly into the treasury of the State Agricultural into the treasury of the State Agricultural society.

There is no doubt that an organization covering the Piedmont region for the purpose of holding an annual fair in Atlanta would do as well as the State Agricultural society or much better. Through the Driving Park association and the money furnished by the city the Piedmont Exposition company would be enabled to go to its grounds just exactly as the State Agricultural society goes to the fair grounds in Macon—without a dollar's expense except to run the fair. Under that plan the association ought to make ten thousand dollars clean money every year, which could go into the improvement of the grounds or its premium list or the crection of an exposition building in the city. When Atlanta was but half its present size and with simply a local fair the association ran for years without costing the proposets a cent. With four annual contents as cent.

half its present size and with simply a local fair the association ran for years without costing the promoters a cent. With four annual fairs now, the company ought to be able to make $50,000. Everybody who is approached on the subject takes a lively interest in the matter and is willing to subscribe.

A meeting will be called this week and signatures of those who will interest themselves will be taken. It is proposed to make the shares of stock $500 each, on which an assessment of twenty per cent, or $100 per share, will be called the first year. The probabilities are that no other assessment will ever be made will be called the first year. The probabilities are that no other assessment will ever be made and that the first assessment will be returned at the end of the first fair.

Atlanta can certainly do as well with the Piedment fair as Macon has done for the state fair, and Macon has made $6,000 a year for the state agricultural society.

MR. H. I. KIMBALL INTERVIEWED.

MR. H. I. KIMBALL INTERVIEWED.

Mr. H. I. Kimball, now of New York, who is in the city for a few days, was interviewed yesterday in reference to the pro-posed fair. Mr. Kimball made fame for himself and Atlanta, through the cotton exposi-tion of 1881. He was director general of that great show which has gone down in history as the most evenly successful exposition ever hold on this continent.

In reply to a question Mr. Kimball said:—
If the people would take the time to look over my report of the exposition of 1881, which I studied and wrote from knowledge and facts that were before me then, thoy would understand my views in regard to the value of expesitions. In brief, let me say that there is no pestions. In orier, term is say that there is no such educator, there is nothing that will bring the people to know each other better, and if it is even local it brings the people from the mountains and the seaboard together. They learn of products of other localities than their own. They learn more by yisiting one exposition than they could learn otherwise in fifty years."

What about the Piedmont fair?" "I have read with interest what has been ublished in THE CONSTITUTION, and there is in my judgment no question as to the advantages or the success of the fair, provided the scheme is broad enough and the management sufficiently liberal. A week's time is not enough. The fair should cover at least thirty enough. The fair should cover at least thirty days and in my judgment forty-five days would be better. People who have minerals, manufactured goods or agricultural products, or anything that is worthy of 'exhibition for the purpose of showing the possibilities of a country, will not take the trouble to send them for a week's show. You should bear in mind that whether your fet; is held gird days six week's or six. your fair is held six days, six weeks, or six months, at least one-third of the time will be consumed in getting the exhibits in order, and in getting the matter before the people."

"What is your opinion of the Piedmont sec-

"I have been saying for nearly twenty years, saying it here and saying it everywhere, privately and publicly, and I am very glad to have an opportunity of repeating it now, that I think, considering everything, climate, lo-I think, considering everything, climate, lo-cality, its mineral and agricultural possibilities, that it is the grandest section on the face of the earth. If I could only have im-pressed the people here and elsewhere as I have been impressed by the Piedmont region, I would today have had more millions than Colonel Mulberry Sellers ever dreamed of." "Would the Piedmont fair pay the stock-holders" holders?"

Under proper management the money might be returned, but my observation is that the press and public are not so quick to take an interest in an enterprise in which the pro meters in an enterprise in which the promoters expect to make money directly for themselves. Let Atlanta put up the money and let her people take hold, and the results will be tenfold more satisfactory. What is put in should be as bread cast upon the waters, and my word for it, it will return."

"Of course Atlanta is the place?"

"When the cotton exposition was to be

"When the cotton exposition was to be located, and all the cities of the south were in the list to be selected from, there was no diffi-culty in settling upon Atlanta. For the Pied-mont fair, Atlanta is by all odds the best

It will be seen that Mr. Kimball is enthusiastically in favor of the proposed exposition.

Below are published several expressions of opinion in reference to the proposed fair:

Mr. Steve Ryan—I should prefer the Piedmont fair to the state fair if I was compelled to take a choice between the two, which I am not. The projected enterprise I think would do Atlanta more good than anything learn think of The projected enterprise I think would do Atlanta more good than anything Fean think of just now. We are willing to give—but wait until the scheme takes a more definite shape.

John N. Dunn—I have not fully considered the propesition, but from a casual glance I should think it is just what we need. Of course I am willing to do my part in this as well as in anything that works the gate city any good.

Mayor J. T. Cooper—Everybody knows that I Mayor J.T.Cooper—Everybody knows that I am always ready to do all in my power to help a new enterprise that will help my home. The Piedmont fair will help the counties interested as much as Atlanta. Every exhibit made, every thing developed will cause a friendly rivalry to spring up out of which much good to all concerned will arise.

P. H. Snook—I have long wished to see the sections of country interested in the Piedmont fair brought nearer together. Much good would naturally result, and the pretty part of the good is that it will be equally divided all around. Atlanta will not be hurt by the success of the scheme.

Year Ago. A curious case of forgery has just come to

On the 8th day of May, 1886, one of the employes of the revenue department requested Collector Crenshaw to cash a check for $175, and the request was complied with. The check was drawn by J. W. Cabiness, of Macon, check was drawn by J. W. Cabiness, of Macon, on Maddox, Rucker & Co., Atlanta. It was dated May the 7th and made payable to the order of DeSassure & Bartlett, Macon, who indersed it, making it payable to the order of W. T. Cole, of Griffin, who in turn indorsed it and made it payable to the order of the Gate City National bank, which sent it for collection to the makers, Messrs. Maddox, Bucker & Co. who frommtly neid the amount. Rucker & Co., who promptly paid the amount Yesterday morning Mr. W. T. Cole, of Grif-fin, came to Atlanta. He went to Messrs. Mad-dox, Rucker & Co., and informed them that his name had been forged to the check; that he never signed it and never received the money or any equivalent therefor. He linested that he should b freimbursed for the $175, and the

Messrs. Maddox, Rucker & Co., then went back upon the bank and got their money. The bank went back upon Collector Crenshaw and got the $175. Collector Crenshaw will go back upon the man from whom he received it, and Mr. Trammell will, in turn, try to get his money from the original indorsers, and they will proceed against the persons from whom they got it. Finally the money will be demanded of the clerk, who is charged with forging the check; that is, if the authorities succeed in capturing him.

Mile. Rhea.

We take great pleasure in reproducing the We take great pressure in reproducing the following beautiful tribute paid to this brilliant lady by the Buffalo Courier:

Mile. Rhea returned last evening to the scene of former triumhps, and was welcomed with a cordiality that could not but have been gratifying to her. The reception accorded the charming actress was invested with attributes of grateful and exceptional significance. It was not an ordinary theatrical performance, nor even an average opening night. It was an occasion testifying, not was invested with attended to season and exceptional significance. It was not an ordinary theatrical performance, nor even an average opening night. It was an occasion testifying, not merely to popular appreciation of a favorite artist, as the testimonial character of the performance betokened the esteem in which an attractive woman is held by a multitude of friends in this hospitable city. And above all, the event had the glamour with which memory suffuses present reality. It was fitting that those who were the first to appreciate Mile. Rhea at her full worth, when she came here a comparative stranger, should make her farewell engagement as noieworthy as was her first appearance here. And it was this commendable desire that prompted the Press club and a goodly number of prominent citizens to accord her the testimonial benefit of the Academy of Music last evening, the success of which was emphatic. The audience was large and brilliant, completely filling the lower part of the house, and encoaching on the tiers to an extent that left few unoccupied chairs or benches anywhere.

The play was "The Widow," a drawing-room comedy by Meilhac and Halevy, illustrating lo a piquant way the waning of a widow's grief under the stress of a newly germinating love, and the discovery of her first spouse's dublous fidelity. No little ingenuity is shown in elaborating this theme into a three-act comedy. Mile. Rhea appeared as the widowed Countess, and brought to the interpretation of the role that feminine tact and intelligent appreciation of its essential qualities which has always distinguished her dramatic efforts. The affectation and touch of sincerity which usually accompany excessive and prolonged moods of mourning were clearly denoted, and made her final capricious yielding to Cupid's instructions entirely plausible, and therefore artistic. The curtain had to be rung up after each act, and several sumptuous floral offerings were handed across the footlights. The superb oostume worn by Mile. Rhea in the last act was the cyn

A Happy Marriage,

Miss Sadie E. Farrell was united in marriage last night to Mr. J. C. Potter. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Rev. V. C. Norcross by that divine, and was witnessed by a few friends by the divine, and was witnessed by a few friends and relatives only. Both the bride and groom are well known and highly appreciated in Atlanta. The bride's parents reside on Grant street near the home of Mr. Porter's father. The groom is a son of the well known watchman at the union passenger depot and is quite popular throughout the city. He is a fine photographer and has long been connected with the Gardner gallery.

There are but four of the Spring street houses left belonging to the Baltimore Syndicate, the following parties having purchased the others: Mrs. S. Hanna, W. A. Wimbish, Jas. A. Gray, Mrs. F. A. McCandless, P. Cook, Jr., and Hon. W. H. Henderson. A small cash payment and a monthly installment of $30.00 will secure one.

WANTED FOR MURDER.

ANATLANTA BOY ARRESTED ON A TELEGRAM FROM MISSISSIPPI.

P. Lanier, An Atlanta Railroad Man is Arrested On Telegram From Meridian, Mississippi, Charging Him With Murder—He is Locked Up—Prisoner Denies Urime.

B. F. Lanier, an Atlanta boy, extensively known in railroad circles, was arrested at his home, No. 16 Tumlin street, yesterday about noon, by Detective Bedford and given a cell in Lanier is charged with murder and is wanted in Mississippi.

Early yesterday morning Chief Connolly received a telegram from the chief of police at Meridian, Mississippi, stating that Lanier, an Atlanta boy, was wanted in Meridian for murder, and it was thought that he was then in Atlanta in hiding. Immediately after receiving the message the chief placed it in the hands of Detective Bedford, with instructions to give it his immediate attention. The telegram gave a description of Lanier and stated that he was accustomed to railroad work. The clews, in the hand of the detective, were fair when he began work, but nothing to produce great hope. He begun by searching the railroad yards, and in a few hours succeeded in finding that a man answering the description given of Lanier, and going by that name, was working with a night force in the Western and Atlantic yards. The detective then began trying to ascertain where Lanier would likely be found when off duty, and in an hour or two located him at No. 16 Tumlin street. When the detective reached the place he was in search of a gentle tap upon the door brought a neatly dressed lady to the front, who remarked inquiringly:

"Well?" ford, with instructions to give it his immediate

"Is there a Mr. Lanier here-a Mr. B. B Lanier?" asked the dete tive.
"Yes, sir," announced the lady; "he is my brother."

"Can I see him a minute, please "If there is anything importan in it, yes," said the lady slowly. "You see he works all night and sleeps all day. I don't like to wake him up, can't you say where he can see you after he gets up."

after he gets up?"
"I am an officer, madam, and I hate to disturb his rest too, but I must—"
"You are an officer? Why what can you want with "You are an officer? Why what can you want with Ben? Surely he has cone nothing wrong?" remarked the lady, turning pale.

"No, I hope not," answered the detective.
"Still, I must see him."
"Well, just wait a minute," answered the lady, as she opened the door wider for the detective tenter.

tective to enter. The detective entered the door and watched the lady as she went into another room. In a second she returned to the room in which she had left the detective, and pointing to the room, said:

"He is in there. Walk in."
The detective walked into the room. It was dark, the curtains being down. He glanced around, and upon a cleau, white bed in one corner saw a man lying upon his side with his head resting upon his hand. The detective pushed the blind to one side so as to admit more light, and glancing toward the bed, ore light, and glancing toward the bed,

"Is this B. F. Lanier?" "That's my name," answered the man upon the bed. "What's wanted?" "Did you ever live in Meridian, Miss?"

"Work at the railroad business there?" "Oh, yes."
"Well, I gness I will have to ask you to go to the stationhouse with me. So get up and put on your clothes, please." Well, we have just got a telegram from Meridian to arrest you, and I will have to take

"All right," answered Lanier, getting out of bed, "but I'd like to know what charge has been preferred against me."

"You'll know in town," answered the de-

Lanier dressed without any apparent trepi-dation and when his toilet was completed, turned to the detective saying: 'I am ready.

While this was transpiring in the bed room I anier's sister was impatiently waiting in the adjoining room to ascertain the cause of the officer's visit, and as the officer and her brother came out she sprang to the latter, and, throwing her arms about his neck,

Ben, Oh! Pen, what have you done? "Nothing, sister, nothing," he answered

Then what do they want with you

"That I do not know. Be calm; I'll go and see and let you know soon."

He then tried to calm the lady, and in a few minutes started with the detective to police headquarters. He moved along quietly and did not appear to be werried over his arrest. As he entered police headquarters beside the detective. Chief Conrolly, who happened to be present, looked up from a telegram he had just received, and, seeing the detective, remarked:
"Bedford, here is another telegram from Meridian about that matter.' "And here is the man," answered the detec-

"Yes, here I am, Arthur," remarked Lanier, stepping forward and extending his hand.
"Why, it is not you?" asked the chies, surprised at meeting an o'd friend.
"Yes, it is me. Would you object to showing me that telegram which has caused my arrest?"

"No, I guess not," answered the chief, hand ing Lanier the message.

Lanier took the telegram and read it slowly.

pleasant information was broken to him through the telegram, but as he handed it back to the chief a smile played about his mouth, as "Well, that takes the cake," "I guess you'd better not say anything that might hurt you hereafter," said the chief, "you know I shall have to lock you up."

"Ah, I guess so. But there is nothing I can say," remarked Lanier, "that can hurt me hereafter."

"Ever been to Meridian?" asked a Constitu-

"Ah, yes."
"When?" "Well, I went there last May and left in September. I came to Atlanta, my home, where I was brought up and then went back through Meridian to New Orleans and then to Texas.

where I worked.' "When did you come to Atlanta?"

"Let's see. Less than a month ago. When I came back then I came through Meridian and tayed there two days and as many nights. It s strange they didn't arrest me then."

"What do you guess caused this telegram "I've no idea."

"Did you ever have any trouble down there?"
"Yes, I had a fight with a fellow named Dinek. We fell out and I hit him in the head with a water bucket. We were both arrested and tried and fined for it."
"Maybe the lick killed him after you left?"
"Oh, no. We made up, and I saw him as I came through Meridian a few weeks ago."
Lanier took his arrest quietly and was locked up. Immediately after he was locked up Chief Connolly wired the Meridian officials of trearrest.

Just before three o'clock this morning a tel-distribute three clock this morning a ter-egram was received from the chief of police at Meridian asking Chief Connolly to hold La-nier until an officer with requisition could arrive. The message stated that he had been guilty of a most outrageous murder.

THE STORY OF THE MURDER.
The following dispatch from Meridian tells the story:

Memblax, Miss., February 45.—[Special.]—The crime with which Lauier, who has been arrested in Atlanta, is charged, is one of the most atrocious murders in the annals of our city. Lanier, in company with James Skidmore, white, and Walter Tucker, colored, it seems, followed an unknown man to one of the law dives in a low part of the city, known as Pabneytown, when Tucker struck him on the head with a piece of iron. He was then carried to the cld fair grounds, where the man Lanier exchanged clothes with him, and among themselves divided his money, about $500, also his watch and chain. Rachel McLemore and Lily Anderson have been arrested as accomplaces. The trial has been in progress two days. Chief of Police Wilson leaves for Atlanta tomorrow night.

KILLED ON HIS TRIP.

GEORGIA PACIFIC TRAIN HAND CRUSHED TO DEATH McKelvey. a Douglasville Boy, Goes to Birmingham

for Work-He Fails to Find it and Finally Starts Out on a Freight Train-He Meets With a Horrible Death.

George W. McKelvey, a train hand on a Georgia Pacific freight train, was cut in two by car wheels pesterday morning just before day near the Georgia state line.

McKelvey's death was a horrible one.

The train by which the train hand lost his life was under command of Conductor Charley Turner, of Atlants. The train left Birmingham night before last seen after midnight, and moved along smoothly until the state line had been passed. A few miles from the state line is a station, at which some cars had been left for the train. When the station was reached Conductor Turner brought his train to a halt on the main line and instructed his train men to cut the train apart just where he wanted to couple the cars on the side track. McKelvey was one of the men who was brought into the service, and the duty assigned him was to couple the loose cars to the train when it was pushed back on the side track. He took his position in front of the cars, and as the train was pushed back, raised to link. The moving cars rolled back slowly and struck those standing still with force. Then the bumpers between a half dozen cars ratifed together and the engineer looked backward out of his car window for the train hand's lantern, which should signal him to move his lever. The lantern did not appear and after waiting a half minute for it the engineer became-satisfied that something wrong had occurred and sent his fireman back to see. At the place where the coupling was to be made the fireman found a lantern but could not see the train hand. The lantern was flat upon the ground, and fearing that the train hand had been hurt the fireman gave an alarm. As his voice died away he heard an unearthly groan almost at his feet, and by stooping down saw McKelvey lying upon the ground half under the train. The alarm brought Conductor Turner and others of the crew to the fireman, and by the light of their lanterns they discovered the unfortunate train hand lying upon the track cut almost in two with the ponderous wheels of one of the cars resting upon him. He was still alive but was rapidly sinking. The conductor at once began a work of rescue. The car was jacked up and the dying man lifted out, and carried to the cab, but before he reached the cab death had relieved him.

The accident caused quite a delay, and when the morning passenger train came by the dead man was placed on a tracked the cab on a dear train and we have been and train and we have been and train and we have the morning passenger train came by the dead man was plac some cars had been left for the train. When the station was reached Conductor Turner and brought to his home at Douglasville. McKelvey was just twenty-two years of age and was born and reared in Douglas county. He worked on a farm all his life until a month ago when he went to Birmingham. He did not succeed well in the magic city and Monday secured a place as train hand on the Georgia Pacific. He had never worked on a railroad a day in his life and was killed on his first trip.
